SUMMARY.

Field-Marshal Haig reports that further ground has been gained southward of Ypres.

Successful raids have been made by the British south of the Souchez River and south of Armentieres.

Hostile raids east of Levergnier and south-east of La Bassee have been repulsed.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, telegraphing on Sunday evening, says the ground won at Messines remains firm in our hands.

The British artillery, he says, breaks any attempts to counter-attack, in most cases before the enemy is able to advance.

After inspecting the smashed German trenches, Mr. Gibbs says he marvels that any prisoners were taken alive.

Mining under the German lines had been carried on for more than a year by Australian and other tunnelling companies.

The British casualties in this battle were light in comparison with other battles.

They are estimated at 10,000 all told, the majority representing minor injuries.

The "Petit Parisien's" correspondent says the age of most German prisoners captured at Messines is about 17 or 18.

The Germans, in their official report, claim to have repulsed British advances between Ypres and Ploegsteert Wood.

A French communique says a violent artillery attack in the Nieuport sector, in Belgium, severely damaged the German trenches.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Morning Post" says there are signs of increasing discipline among the Russian soldiery.

A Petrograd message says three German officers stated they were instructed to offer Russia a separate peace.

The officers presented themselves on the British front, but having no credentials with them, they were sent back.

A message was later received from von Hindenburg confirming the offer, and stating Austro-Hungary was also making overtures.

The New York "World's" Washington correspondent, referring to the despatch of troops, says America will not stop with General Pershing's division.

Troops will be sent to Europe in the near future, he adds, in greater numbers than has been supposed.

The Washington Commerce Department says whale and porpoise meat as war-time food would increase the food supply for the Allies.

Italian cavalry from Albania have occupied Yanina, in Northern Greece.

The Greek authorities withdrew without resistance, but the Government is protesting against the action of the Italians.

The undertaking asked for by the Commonwealth respecting the Queensland sugar industry has not yet been given.

Vigorous protests were made at the P.L.L. Conference last night against the method of voting for the executive.

THE ART OF COMPARISON.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that "COMPARISONS ARE ODIOUS"; in other words, that they are HATEFUL or OFFENSIVE. In certain cases COMPARISONS ARE INFRA DIG, but when APPLIED to GOODS SOLD at the NEW PALACE EMPORIUM they are the VERY ANTITHESIS.

To make a PROPORTIONATE ESTIMATE of the QUALITY and PRICE of GOODS is the CORRECT WAY to set about SHOPPING. THIS is the METHOD ANTHONY HORDERNS' LIKE all their PATRONS to ADOPT. FIRST INSPECT SIMILAR GOODS in OTHER SHOPS, and then those at the NEW PALACE EMPORIUM, it will READILY be SEEN that, QUALITY CONSIDERED, ANTHONY HORDERNS' can UNDERSELL all other traders. This is PARTICULARLY the CASE with LADIES' DRESS MATERIALS, several lines of which are here enumerated, the REASON being the BENEFICENT INFLUENCE of

ANTHONY HORDERNS' FAMOUS LOW PRICES.

COLOURED DRESS MATERIALS.

MAKE COUGH MIXTURE AND SAVE MONEY.

The cost of cough mixture usually amounts to a considerable sum in the average family; but it need not necessarily do so, as anyone can, in a few moments, make as fine a quality Cough, Cold, and Sore Throat Remedy as money can buy. All that has to be done to make a pint of mixture is to obtain a bottle of HEENZO (Hean's Essence) and dilute it with water and sweeten according to easy directions printed on the label. A pint or ordinary remedies would cost at least 12/. HEENZO (Hean's Essence) costs only 2/ (by post 2/3), and is obtainable from all leading chemists and stores.

If you prefer a lozenge to a liquid remedy ask for HEENZO COUGH DIAMONDS. They are pleasant to take, and very efficient. Price 1/ per tin.

DON'T THROW AWAY YOUR SOILED DRESSES.

Why should you go to the expense of new garments when you can have your soiled apparel cleaned for a few shillings. Test the economy of this plan, and prove how satisfactory it is.

Send along a trial parcel, and let us show you the efficiency of our work.

Our Dyes are of the same high quality, and as fast as in pre-war days.

If it has too much or too little it will not fly. Similarly a man must have just enough food to be healthy. Too much will make him ill. With too little he can't fly or work.

The happy medium in foods will be found in

"REX" LORRAINE SMOKED SAUSAGES.

They contain the right amount of nourishment, with the savoury flavours which please the palate, yet do not pall. Serve Rex Lorraine Sausages to your men folk for any meal of the day, and serve them hot. They are an ideal winter food, and, although the newest delicacy of the "Rex" line are already immensely popular throughout Australia.

INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH.

THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH.

THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH.

Today everyone has been more or less educated in art, and are keen critics of the lighting, posing, and general build-up of a good photograph; they easily discern the difference between the artistic and the crude.

As a great musician delights to play before a keen critic, so we cater for those who know the best.

Our patrons return to us time after time, and are fine advertisements for our skill.

There are photographs that do not appeal to you. There is no soul in them. The sitter has been photographed without expression, and the lack of animation would suggest a statue rather than an individual.

OUR Portraits are noted for faithfulness of the likeness of the sitter. They seem to utter that personality of yours known to your friends.

HEALTH SOCIETY.

LECTURE BY DR. M'LEAN.

Dr. Archie M'Lean, who was a member of the Mawson Antarctic Expedition, and who has recently returned from the front, lectured on "Experiences with the R.A.M.C. Abroad" to the members of the Health Society yesterday afternoon.

Dr. M'Lean was actually 11 months with his regiment, but a poisoned finger compelled him to retire to one of the clearing stations where casualties from the battle of the Somme were being treated. He traced his career from the outset, from the military camp in England, etc., across the Channel to French shores, the transport guarded and guided by destroyers. "Australians do not think half enough of these silent watchers," he added. As the lecturer was talking to the members of the Health Society, he took sanitation for his subject, and gave his hearers some idea of the manner in which the trenches are made habitable. Although there seemed always to be plenty of water, it was not always drinkable, and sometimes this had to be fetched two miles in petrol cans, the well from which it was drawn being strongly guarded day and night. Some of the heaviest work fell to the lot of the sanitary men. In some instances the washing places were in the front line. The men went in single file to their washholes, returning in like manner. The greatest difficulties they had to face were met with when they had to make sanitary an old battlefield, and the straw which had been strewn in the bottom of the trenches soon became more than unpleasant. Both rats and vermin they had to contend against, but both troubles were overcome to a wonderful extent by the use of a powerful disinfectant, which was freely used with the aid of hand-pumps.

When the first big offensive was contemplated full medical preparations were made by digging trenches two miles long and 6ft wide to allow of the easy passage of the stretcher-bearers. These alleys leading to the dressing stations were known as "Guy's Alley" and "Bart's Alley," after the two great London hospitals. In conclusion he paid a glowing tribute to the work of the Engineers. These men and the sanitary staff laboured unceasingly to render the trenches habitable, and to make the lives of the fighting men as happy as possible under dreadful circumstances.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued.

How much of the truth had he learnt? On reflection, Carton came to the conclusion that Eldwood would not have parted with his secret. The man was quite scoundrel enough, but too greedy for money to give it away for nothing.

The probability was that he had come to agree to Carton's terms, and he would know that not another cent would he get if he opened his lips.

No, what Frank knew he had heard from the Ledfields. This would be the fact that Muriel was his sister. Despair at the loss of her had first gripped him and then driven him away until he had recovered balance and self-control to meet her under the altered conditions.

Carton recognised that his former plan was now shattered. Frank must be told the rest of the truth as soon as possible, and they three must get away home at once. With characteristic promptness he began to arrange for that at once. He telephoned to inquire about passages in the first outgoing steamer, and then sat down to write to Muriel to be ready.

"My very dear daughter.—This is my first letter to you since the strange and delightful discovery that you are my own dear child, and——"

Carton had only written so far—for the first letter to Muriel had been embarrassingly difficult to word—when he was interrupted by a servant with his brother's card.

"Let him come up," he said, and after adding a few words to the letter he put the blotting paper over it hurriedly, as Sir James entered. "Why have you come here?" he asked sharply.

"You—you told me to come to-day," stammered Sir James, alarmed by the curt reception.

"You were to bring Muriel. Why haven't you?"

"I came yesterday to explain that——"

"What right had you to come at any other time than that I said?" broke in Carton angrily. "And what right have you to come now without her?"

Sir James wrung his hands feebly. "We—we don't know where she is."

"You told me you did."

"No—no. I didn't; my wife told me——"

"Your wife! Your wife! What sort of a man have you become to hide yourself behind a woman's petticoats? Haven't you got pluck enough to do anything without being pushed into it by her? Does she feed you on pap with a spoon? And put you across her knee and slipper you when you're naughty? You told me she had sent Muriel out of town, and you promised to bring her here to-day."

"That's what she said."

Carton laughed scornfully. "Said? She lied to you, you mean, and I suppose you just touched your cap and thanked her with a cringe and a smirk. You were always a worm, James, and now you seem even afraid to wriggle without her leave."

Sir James wriggled now very uneasily. "You don't understand," he stammered.

"There's something I mean to understand before you go—why the devil you dared to tell Frank what you did yesterday?"

"She—told him. I—I tried to stop her. I did, really."

"Tried! How did you try—go on your knees and promise to be a good boy if she'd hold her tongue? I've no use for your sort, James. What did she tell him?"

"Only that Muriel was—was your daughter."

"Only! Only!" scoffed Carton furiously. "And why in thunder had you been such a wishy-washy milksop as to tell her anything about it? And when you had been such a blabbing idiot, why did you bring her here? Even you must know how she hates the boy. Tell me just how it was all said."

With many pauses and stuttering hesitation Sir James repeated as much of the interview as he could remember, growing more and more alarmed as Carton's heavy frown deepened at the recital.

"Of course. She could be reckoned upon to make the worst she could of it. You must be proud of such a wife, in all truth. Now you understand, James," he said sternly, shaking a menacing forefinger at his brother, "I'll never forgive her or you for that. I had intended to treat you and your wife with the contempt you both deserve, but I'll give you hades for this."

"It wasn't my fault. Gordon ——"

"Don't call me by that name," cried Carton furiously.

"I'm sorry. I'm sure I don't know what to do."

"I can tell you something you'll do. I know John Eldwood, and ——"

"Oh, God!" exclaimed Sir James, shrinking back in his chair, clasping his hands to his pallid face and trembling violently.

Even Carton, angry as he was, paused at the sight of his brother's anguish and abject terror, and waited for him to regain self-command. Many minutes passed before the wretched, fear-stricken man could throw off the panic which the mention of Eldwood's name had caused, and in the interval Carton's anger cooled and he had time to think.

He had merely intended to frighten his brother, and although his bitter resentment of the infamous treatment to which Muriel had been subjected had been worked to a white heat by the previous day's business, he had no desire to see him sent to gaol. He judged from Eldwood's statement that the chief part had been played by the wife, and that Sir James had been little more than a tool in her hands.

"You'd better tell me all about that business," he said presently, and the rambling, inconsequent, half-hysterical story which Sir James told confirmed the opinion.

"You put it all down to your wife, then. Well, I can believe it, because I know you; but, anyway, you're in a devil of a mess. John Eldwood is in London, looking for you. Now, don't give way to another panic. I tell you for your own good, not to scare you. And there are only two things for you to do, and do right now. One is to go home and blow your brains out; but as I don't suppose you've pluck enough for that, you'd better fall back on the other, and get out of the country before he finds you."

"But I—"

"There's no sense in 'butting' like that. He's dangerous, and he knows much more than you think. Your wife let out that you were Sir James, and he caught sight of the first letter of your surname on one of her handkerchiefs. He's looking for Sir James L——; and, as he said to me, there are not so many of 'em that he will have to look long."

Sir James groaned, and presently raised his haggard face imploringly to Carton. "Come with me and tell her this," he urged.

Carton shook his head. "You can send her here to me, if she won't believe you. If she thinks she can brazen it out, let her, I say. But don't you be persuaded to make such a fool of yourself. Get away to-day. And get far enough away, too."

"I—I can't. I—I've no money. How could I live."

"Find some honest work to do for a change."

Again a long silence followed, and then Sir James got up, trembling in every limb.

"I'll pay your passage out to Australia and send you enough money to live on till you find some work," said Carton. "But you must be out of London to-day."

"There's so much to——" he began, and stopped with a start of terror as voices were heard outside the door, which was thrust open violently.

"Out of the way, fool! I tell you, I've an appointment," said an angry voice, and Eldwood pushed past the servant and entered. "Here, Carton, this man—— By Gee!" he broke off in intense astonishment, as he caught sight of the shrinking, panic-stricken Sir James. Then he burst suddenly into a boisterous laugh as he clapped the trembling little man on the shoulder, and then seized his hand and insisted on shaking it vigorously. "If it isn't little Johnnie Langton! So he's a friend of yours, eh, Carton? Introduce me—in his right name, I mean, of course. Buck up, little man. I'm not going to eat you—yet."

"You'd better drop that tone here, Eldwood," said Carton angrily.

"Be reasonable, Carton; be reasonable, do. This dear little fellow stands for ten thousand dollars to me; two thousand pounds, isn't it? This infernal English money system always has me beaten. But two thousand's near enough. Two thousand pounds! You wouldn't have me shed a tear at such a day's work, would you? Well, what is your right name, Johnnie? And how's the handsome wife? How delighted she'll be to see me again! Gee! What a find." And he threw himself into a chair and laughed more boisterously than before.

He was careful to choose a chair between Sir James and the door however; and under his surface merriment he watched the other two narrowly, and was shrewd enough to see that for some reason Carton, although not alarmed, was almost as much disconcerted as his shivering companion. This prompted the comfortable belief that his "find" was likely to prove even more valuable than he had thought at first.

"I'm waiting for that introduction, Carton," he said after a long silence.

"This is Sir James Ledfield," replied Carton, recognising the futility of attempting to hide anything.

ON THE LAND.

GRANTHAM POULTRY FARM.

PURCHASED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

The Minister for Lands, Mr. W. G. Ashford, who is in charge of the scheme for the settlement of soldiers on the land, yesterday announced that, on behalf of the Government, he had purchased the well-known Grantham Stud Poultry Farm as a going concern, for the sum of £10,000. It was known that negotiations had been going on for some time, and yesterday morning the deal was completed. The farm will be utilised for the purpose of stocking soldiers' farms and the employment of a number of partially incapacitated soldiers who are suitable for the work. Mr. Ashford said that he looked upon it as a very good purchase, as it will put the department in the position of being able to supply stock from a first-class stud to the different poultry farms it is establishing. Portion of the farm will be cut up into blocks for soldiers.

The Grantham Stud Poultry Farm is one of the best known properties of its kind in the State. It is about half a mile or less from the Seven Hills railway station, and has a total area of about 123 acres. It has a frontage of about 36 chains to the main Seven Hills road, along which the water main comes within 20 chains of the property. It is securely fenced, and subdivided into five main paddocks, apart from the poultry enclosures, and is well watered. There are one large dam, two small dams, and some large waterholes in a creek, which runs through the property, to which the land on either side slopes, from a fair elevation. Eighty-six acres are cleared, of which four acres have been cultivated. The balance of the area is covered with bush timber and wattle scrub. The soil is of a loamy nature. The property, of course, is well improved, and one of its possessions is the largest incubator in Australia, with a capacity of 6000 eggs, and there are 14 other incubators of a total capacity of 4000 eggs, in addition to a complete working plant, and the valuable stock. The Government's officers started yesterday to make an inventory. It is estimated that on the farm are 300 head of high-class stud birds, 1200 head of more or less good stud birds, approximately 500 other birds more or less suitable for breeding, and also about 1000 marketable birds. In addition, there are some 2500 chickens from two to fourteen weeks old.

The Grantham Stud Poultry Farm was established originally in 1898 at Plumpton, Rooty Hill, as the Grantham Poultry Farm. Mr. J. Hadlington, the present Government poultry expert, took over the management of the farm in 1895, and in 1906 the stock buildings and plant were moved to the present site at Seven Hills. Since Mr. Hadlington joined the Department of Agriculture his son has been managing the Grantham farm. The farm for years has done a large trade in stud and show birds, and the general opinion, we should think, amongst those who know the property, will be that the Government has made a good bargain. If the department decided to establish a stud farm on similar lines as Grantham stud, it is safe to say that it would take years to do so, and the ultimate cost would be greater than the price paid for this going concern. As it is, the department secures sound, well-bred stock, practically unprocurable in any number in the ordinary way, and will be able to supply the soldiers' settlements that are being established, under expert supervision, with stock from approved strains. There will be probably sufficient birds available at once to stock partly at least the poultry farms on the soldiers' settlement at Bankstown. Furthermore, the farm will be valuable as a training school in practical poultry. It is proposed to send batches of six men to the Grantham farm for three months' training.

THE WHEAT CROP.

135,000,000 BUSHELS.

MELBOURNE.—Senator Russell states that the 1916-17 harvest has considerably exceeded anticipations. At one time it had appeared as if the crop would not exceed 110,000,000 bushels. Later it was thought the limit would be 120,000,000 bushels, but now that deliveries have been practically completed, it appears the total quantity will be 135,000,000 bushels.

This will be contributed to by the four States as follows:—New South Wales, 31,500,000; Victoria, 50,000,000; South Australia, 40,000,000; Western Australia, 13,500,000. The latest returns indicate that the quantity of old wheat still held by millers and shippers amounts to 37,047,000 bushels. If to this the new crop is added, it gives the quantity of wheat in the pool as 172,047,000 bushels. From this must be deducted the portion of the new crop which has been delivered or shipped, viz., 6,481,000 bushels. This leaves to be shipped or delivered 165,566,000 bushels. From this quantity a deduction of 17,766,000 bushels must be made for local consumption to the end of the present year. The wheat sold overseas, including the Imperial Government's purchase of wheat and flour, but not yet shipped, amounts to 104,700,000 bushels. If these two quantities are deducted, it leaves the quantity of wheat unsold in the pool as 43,100,000 bushels. From this should be deducted estimated sales for the year to Callao, Africa, America, Norway, and the East, amounting to about 5,450,000 bushels. The estimated maximum quantity of wheat that will be unsold on the pool's hands at the end of the year will, therefore, be 37,650,000 bushels. With a pool of 135,000,000 bushels this would be equivalent to over 72 per cent., practically three-quarters being disposed of by December 31, 1917, in addition to any sales of magnitude that may be made.

Growers should bear in mind that no sales of 1916-1917 wheat have been made at a rate lower than 4/9 per bushel. On the other hand, sufficient sales have been made at a higher figure to add a half-penny per bushel to the value of the whole crop. If realisation at the same rate continues, it should result in a net f.o.b. return which would compare quite favourably with the return for 1915-1916.

WHEAT OR FLOUR.

The Minister for Agriculture, Mr. W. C. Grahame, stated yesterday that he has received inquiries from a number of people recently as to whether it would not be advisable to have a larger proportion of the wheat left in the country turned into flour and stored until required, and one or two suggestions have been made that a State mill should be erected to do this work.

Mr. Grahame points out in reply to these inquiries that already a large contract has been entered into with the Imperial Government for the supply of a quantity of flour, and those mills which are able to participate in this order are already working three shifts a day to fulfil requirements for export and local trade. The question of providing additional mills to deal with the whole of the wheat in the country is outside the bounds of practical business. There is more danger in keeping flour over extended periods than there is in keeping wheat, and it is considered most inadvisable to keep flour longer than from six to eight months. Again, when the question of exporting flour in lieu of wheat is taken into consideration, the wishes of the buyers must be considered, and, in most cases, such as, for instance, a country like Great Britain, wheat is preferred to flour. In any case, owing to the lack of tonnage it is considered that it would not be advisable to accumulate large stores of flour.

THE MICE PLAGUE.

The Minister for Agriculture, Mr. W. C. Grahame, states that from to-day there will be a change in the management of the work in connection with the wheat stacks, owing to the ravages of the mice. Hitherto the stacks have been left entirely in the charge of the shipping agents, who have acted as Government agents for the receipt, care, and shipping of the wheat. These agents have sub-agents at each country station, so that at many of these places there are up to seven sub-agents employing labour, and carrying out work round the stacks without any co-operation or uniformity. From to-day, the Minister states, the work will be under the direct control of the State Wheat Office. The railways have been divided into sections, and an inspector placed in charge of a short length containing a small number of stations over which he will have complete control. At each station one of the sub-agents has been selected to exercise control over the wheat in that station under the inspector. He will exercise constant supervision and see that the work is carried out during the absence of the inspector at his other stations. For the time being the other sub-agents will be eliminated as far as the active work of repairing the stacks is concerned.

The inspectors are now on their way to their sections, and their instructions are that weather protection is to be the first and most urgent matter to be attended to, and wherever possible roofs will be erected over the stacks on supports independent of the stacks themselves, so that in case of further subsidence of the stacks the roofs will not become disarranged.

The Minister hopes that under this arrangement—by which there will be a single controlling agent at each station—the work will be greatly expedited and economy obtained.

ALLEGED CARELESSNESS.

WAGGA.—Much of the enormous loss of wheat and expense to the farmer for reconditioning could have been saved if the representatives of the buying agents and the State Wheat Board had taken ordinary precautions or shown a real desire to prevent the piling up of expenses against the wheat pool. When the mice plague was first reported, as is now well known, practically nothing was done until the stacks were riddled through and through, and the wheat was running loose in hundreds of thousands of bushels in the station yards. Then came a time when the wheat boards released the agents from responsibility for damage done by the mice, and requested that immediate steps be taken to protect the stacks, presumably at the expense of the wheat pool. When the reconditioning of the wheat was commenced thousands of pounds' worth of damage had been done, and it was reasonable to expect that, profiting by the experience gained, steps would have been taken to effectually protect the new stacks; instead of which the practice was adopted in many instances of restacking the wheat on the same site, or within 20 yards of the mice-wrecked stack, without the slightest attempt being made to prevent the mice from transferring their operations from one stack to the other. It was only after some of the wheat had to be rebagged for the second or third time that those in authority issued instructions to put an end to this ruinous method of handling the farmers' wheat. For weeks past, at almost any station in this part of the State, evidence of the losses was to be seen in the large heaps of ruined wheat mixed with debris, but by far the larger loss is represented by the money expended in the double handling of the wheat. At Coreinbob railway siding during the past week, on the visit of the Commissioner, attention was drawn to the great damage being done to the stacks. The Commissioner inquired whose wheat it was and why it had not been trucked Sydney. Ample rolling stock, he said, was available. In fact, he went as far as to say that the Commissioners had not known lately what to do with their surplus rolling stock.

"One Wheatgrower" writes:—As the owner of a quantity of wheat scrip I have taken considerable interest in the question of whether the Government or the farmer will be responsible for the damage caused by mice. I have been in consultation with several large wheat growers, and they maintain with me that the farmer should not suffer any loss or damage by mice or otherwise, as the Government purchased the wheat from the farmer and sold same to the British Government, the latter to find shipping and take delivery at 4s 9d per bushel f.o.b. The Government, owing to their control of the freight, have prevented shipments to other parts of the world, notably America, and thus prevented the farmer securing a much higher price in the world's markets than he was forced to accept from the pool. I, and other farmers, fully realise it was an effort to secure much-needed supplies for the Imperial Government, and we were quite willing to make a sacrifice in price to assist the Empire in its needs for the army, but we don't feel called upon to suffer for any damage that occurs to our wheat after it has been sold and taken possession of by the Government. If farmers had been allowed to keep their wheat in their own sheds or stacks they could have prevented the great losses that have occurred through mice damage. They would have had individual control and properly fenced their stacks to prevent mice damage. Instead of that, the wheat has been stacked in great quantities at various railway stations throughout the State, and when such stacks were attacked by mice it was almost impossible to avoid enormous losses through the stacks falling. We believe the Imperial Government can be induced to take, at least, a fair share of the responsibility for damage by the mice owing to delayed shipment, as it is clear to any fair-minded person that the responsibility of finding freight rested with them, and the unfortunate wheat-grower should not be called upon to bear an undue share of the difficulties that confront the Empire through shortage of tonnage. From a legal standpoint I hold the opinion that the Government is liable for any damage done to the wheat in the pool while it is awaiting shipment, since they forcibly took possession of the wheat and became practically the owners, if not the absolute owners. I would, with many others, be pleased if you can enlighten us on the matter, and state the Government's intention regarding the losses caused by the mice plague. What were the conditions in connection with the seizure of the wheat by the Government, and who carries the responsibility for damage, the Government or the farmers? That is the question.

RABBIT DESTRUCTION.

Mr. William Smith, Currabubula, writes:—I note your leader in Tuesday's issue re the large amount of money that is being made by trappers. The rabbit is very much required for food purposes, but we must ask ourselves do we want the rabbit industry or pastoral industry, for one of the industries must eventually go. In spite of the continuation of the poison cart, and continuous drought, the rabbit pest has been rapidly expanding, and although we have only had one good season, nevertheless, when the dry spell commenced, the country contained far more rabbits than ever. It only requires two good seasons to cause a serious crisis in connection with the rabbit pest, and it has been proved over and over again that trappers increase the pest instead of decreasing it. The only method to adopt to destroy the rabbit pest is natural disease and natural enemies: the law of nature.

PASTORALISTS' ASSOCIATION.

BROKEN HILL.—Mr. T. M. Daskein, president of the Pastoralists' Association of West Darling, in the course of his annual address, said the association now had 80 members, representing 809,783 sheep and 18,881 cattle. Speaking of the shearing award, he said he was afraid that this agreement was not being faithfully carried out by the shearing labour. The pastoralists were in the unfortunate position that the award from the Court was one binding upon the employer, and he had no means whatever of compelling the employee to observe the same. This appeared to him one of the greatest weaknesses and inequalities of the Arbitration award in so far as they had applied in the past, for it opened out temptations and opportunities for unrestrained trouble, and to a very large extent defeated the purpose of the award. Mr. Daskein further urged the need of completing the dog-proof fence on the Queensland and South Australian borders to give protection to pastoralists.

POISONING RABBITS.

GLEN INNES.—The directors of the Glen Innes Pastures Protection Board are strongly of the opinion that all landholders should be compelled to use poison as a means of destroying rabbits, and that the proclamation gazetted, exempting landholders within a 10 miles radius of railway lines, will only tend to foster the pest. As an instance of the efficacy of poisoning, Director C. J. Campbell, of Ranger's Valley, Glen Innes, says that two men poisoning with strychnine and thistle roots have accounted for 13,186 rabbits on the enclosed area on his property since the middle of January.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.

KURRI KURRI.

KURRI KURRI.—The fourth annual show of the Kurri Kurri District Horticultural, Bird, Dog, and Fine Arts Society was opened on Saturday afternoon by Mr. M. Charlton, M.P. The show's special feature was the birds, with over 700 entries, in cage birds 250. Mr. C. Pragley, the judge, stated that it was the best show of his 15 years' experience.

I went to buy a Gramophone
I found something infinitely greater——The VOCALION!

BEFORE I purchased I looked at many types of disc playing instruments. Fine though some of them were, the differences seemed trifling. All looked alike. One may have given a little better results in instrumental music, and another with the human voice. And then my quest led me to the NEW INSTRUMENT, the Aeolian-Vocalion, and all others faded from mind.

In the Vocalion I heard music I never dreamed a Phonograph could produce. Sweet, full richness of tone vibrant with the very quality of life, delicate tonal tints marked the difference of instrument and instrument. Here was the model to satisfy my desires, its appeal was irresistible. I was charmed with the "GRADUOLA" expression device; by gentle pressure the music seemed to melt to my touch, swelling forth to a full flood of melody at will; what joy at expressing my own feeling, and then at the end of the selection all was silent, it had automatically stopped.

The Aeolian-Vocalion
THE GREATEST OF ALL DISC PLAYING INSTRUMENTS WAS THE ONE OF MY CHOICE

THE PAPER SHORTAGE.

"Herald" readers spending their holidays at Tourist Resorts will have difficulty in getting the paper unless they order in advance.

The newsagents cannot keep supplies for casual sales without risk of loss, as unsolds will not be returnable after July 1.

Before going on holidays readers should leave orders for the "Herald" with the publisher at the Head Office, and he will arrange with the local newsagent for supply.

JOHN FAIRFAX & SONS, LTD.

TO READERS OF THE "HERALD."

The shortage of paper is forcing upon the publishers of daily papers a new system of sale to the newsagents.

Hitherto, daily papers have been supplied to agents "on sale or return." In normal times this has been profitable to the sellers and a convenience to the public.

But now all materials are difficult to obtain owing to lack of shipping, and have reached unheard-of prices.

Therefore, as from July 1, the system of "on sale or return" will be discontinued till further notice.

In order to avoid loss, the newsagent must adjust his supplies to the actual demand. In this course we ask the co-operation of our readers. If they will place regular orders with their agents, or with the street vendors from whom they customarily buy, they will save inconvenience to themselves and loss to the agents.

AMERICA TO RUSSIA.

President Wilson's message to Russia would be a document of first-class importance in the history of the war, even if it were to have no influence in consolidating the people and the army on the side of the Allies. It concludes with a warning to the extremists against the folly of hoping that their own ideals of government can succeed if they stand by and allow an autocracy to be triumphant, but the whole message is a warning to Germany against the folly of basing any hopes on a misunderstanding of America's intentions. The President takes two delusions separately and shatters them in turn. The German people have been encouraged to hope that since America was brought into the war by the proclamation of ruthless submarining she could be induced to make peace by a change of policy, or in the alternative that she would confine her assistance to the protection of commerce at sea. The German Government appears to believe that since President Wilson distinguished between the Governments and the peoples of the Central Powers in his message to Congress he would therefore be placated by offers of franchise concessions in Prussia and by patronage of the Socialist leaders. None of these delusions can survive the publication of this message. The President adopts in almost every detail the terms set out in the allied Note. There is no reference to the specific cause of American intervention, unless the President's reference to the establishment of public law can be construed as especially applicable to traffic by sea. The President covers every object of the Western Allies in his references to the German plan for a mid-European despotism and to the positions of advantage from which the invaders were able to attack the Allies in 1914. In these two passages he associates himself with the Western Allies as opposed to the Russian advocates of no annexation and no indemnities. Subject always to the right of a people to choose its own rulers, he would clearly restore the conquered provinces to France, and would make the readjustments of territory necessary to prevent the formation of a continuous Empire from Hamburg to Bagdad. Promises of a more liberal system of government have by no means persuaded the American Government that if Germany were allowed to make a compromise peace she would be a more peaceful neighbour in the future than she has been in the past. The long correspondence after the sinking of the Lusitania has taught the President the value of a German promise. The Socialists were kept in subjection while the war was going well for Germany. They were treated as important citizens when their help was needed for the national mobilisation and when they could be employed abroad in the disguise of agents of socialism to do the work of their Government. There was talk of an honourable peace without annexations when the Allied offensive promised to crush Germany by the summer; the country was flooded with annexation pamphlets as soon as it appeared tolerably certain that Russia would make a separate peace. If there is any influential party among the Russians still in favour of a separate peace, it is probably beyond the reach of any message from President Wilson. The warning will nevertheless be useful to the Russian Government as well as to the Socialists of all countries, for it comes from the head of a country which has no material interest in the plans of the Allies, and which before entering the war studied the conduct and the objects of the belligerents with a scrupulous impartiality.

This statement has an added importance because of the freedom of the United States from any formal alliance. Mr. Balfour, after his first interview with the President, made it clear that the new ally was at liberty to make peace whenever she thought fit; and to employ her resources in the war without any precise stipulations. It was freely argued by the enemy that she might think fit to make peace before any of her soldiers could be despatched to Europe, or any new vessels could be engaged in carrying food. Any misunderstanding of that sort has been removed. The honour of the United States has now been pledged to a number of objects which cannot be attained until Germany has been utterly defeated, and the only portion of her army available has already been sent to Europe. The one difference between the United States and the European allies is to be found not in limitation of aims or resources, but in freedom from any suspicion of self-interest. The intervention now appears as a judgment on all the German schemes. The American people have looked upon themselves as the champions of certain ideals, of which the most conspicuous are love of liberty and respect for the law. They find that the German ideal of government involves oppression and the reign of force. They find that a German victory will mean the establishment of these ideals as the governing elements in the world, and that their expression will mean the gradual substitution of autocratic for a democratic form of government. The President has a wonderfully strong position from which to appeal to the Russian extremists if they are at all accessible to reason. He can tell them that his fellow-citizens are prepared to give their lives in order to establish in the world that order of living which they believe to be right. He can thus reinforce the appeals of men like the returned exile Prince Kropotkin, who gave his youth as his contemporaries gave their lives in order that Russia might become free. It is impossible to say whether any reasoning will induce the Russians to prefer to see the new institutions of their country made secure by a German defeat or whether they will be content with a brief peace under a German triumph. In either case, President Wilson's message will have its value, for it will reaffirm the decision of the Allies to go on with their task, whether Russia helps them or not.

REPATRIATION.

No more important duty rests upon the "Win-the-War" Government than its responsibilities in the matter of repatriation. In a way this is a post-war problem, but it is more than that. It has an aspect that has a very direct bearing upon the immediate prosecution of the war. If it is muddled recruiting will suffer in direct ratio as the muddling is known, and the extent of it. If it is carried out on business lines, then the men who are eligible but who have not yet seen their way to enlist, may the more easily be persuaded to do so. So repatriation is not a post-war problem merely, though in its graver aspects it will become more serious when the war is over and large drafts of men come back for whom some provision has to be made. So far the returned men who have to be provided for are relatively few in number, and relatively unfit for work. All the men who are now returning are more or less on the sick list. Some of them are so unwell that they are a problem for the doctors rather than for the repatriation committees. A smaller proportion, though they have been pronounced unfit for further fighting, are by no means unfit for work, and the sooner they get back to some regular occupation the better for themselves and for the community. As to whether these men who supply a comparatively simple problem for the authorities are being treated in quite the way they should is open to doubt. Certainly many of the men believe that early promises are not being carried out with the promptitude that they consider desirable. We do not now refer to cases in which the men who complain have small claim to consideration. That there are cases in which returned men have altogether extravagant ideas of what they should expect cannot be doubted. But there are others who hoped to be assisted in some way or other, for whom, so far, no provision has been made.

Two distinct problems face the Government in dealing with repatriation. First, it must decide upon a definite policy, and then it must create suitable machinery for the carrying out of that policy. So far it would seem to have done neither. The handing over of lump sums to claimants and leaving them to work out their own salvation after the advance has been made is no solution of the problem. It is the kind of policy that must fail for several reasons. First, the funds available, or to be made available, cannot stand that sort of thing; and, secondly, many men are constitutionally unfit to become their own masters. If a man is given, say, £200 as an advance wherewith to run, say, a poultry farm, the chances are ten to one that he will fail to make good. It may be called an advance, but in most of such cases it really amounts to a gift; for there is little probability of recovery. And the last stages of the soldier-farmer would be no better than the first. Yet if each returned man were handed over such a sum the aggregate amount required to finance the scheme would reach over £80,000,000. Under the present Act the repatriation committee is empowered to advance not more than £500 to any one applicant. If each returned man were given the largest advance possible under this Act the amount required would reach over £200,000,000, a sum that is obviously altogether beyond our resources.

The fundamental line of policy that should be pursued by the Government is to see that the amount reasonably available is equitably distributed among the whole of the returned men who have legitimate claims, in such a way that the men themselves are benefited without being pauperised or encouraged to consider that they have a permanent claim for a Government dole. When we remember that £32,000,000 was the largest sum proposed to be set aside by the Government for the purpose of repatriation, in which is included the cost of land, it can be seen that the finances will have to be handled with considerable skill if this is to be made to go round. Even this sum has not yet been provided for by way either of taxation or by way of loan. Next in importance to the discovery of the best policy is the creation of the most effective machinery. This is no politician's job. It is essentially a task for a business man, and a capable one at that. The control should be given to the best brains in the community, cost what they may. This is too big a thing to palter with. Too much is at stake for experiment. There should be no room for political influence. If every member of Parliament is to be allowed to act as counsel for each claimant then the cost will be outrageous, and the lives of members unendurable. Firm hands, guided by a humane heart, are required. The present board of trustees, consisting of men who have other and to them more important duties demanding their attention is out of the question as a permanent thing. It rests with the Government to put the repatriation scheme on a more secure footing, and that as soon as possible.

LABOUR'S DUTY.

The conference convened by the Prime Minister, of representatives of the various unions interested in shipbuilding, will open in Melbourne to-day. It is interesting as a sign of the times. Here is the Australian Government impressed with the view that it is imperative to tackle what for us is the novel enterprise of shipbuilding, but refusing to go on unless it is assured of the hearty co-operation of organised labour. The Government says in effect that it will find the money, that it will see to the supervision, and generally take the responsibility for success, but only if the unions on their part agree that the employer—in this instance the whole of the people of the Commonwealth—gets a fair deal. It now rests with the unions to say whether or no they are prepared to play the game in this hour of national crisis. No doubt the more moderate unionists will readily agree. They will realise that the mere fact of the establishment of so important an industry as shipbuilding must absorb a lot of labour, and so materially add to the avenues of employment. They will realise, also, that if the Commonwealth Government as representing the people of Australia cannot do what is fair by them as employees, no one can. This idea of obtaining guarantees from unions is a new development in statescraft. It was first applied by the Prime Minister in connection with the Queensland sugar industry. As to what will be the binding effect of such agreements only time can show. This much is clear, however, that any flouting of the supreme Government in war time is a very different thing to refusing to carry out an agreement entered into with private employers. The latter is in the nature of a mere breach of contract; the former would be in the nature of a treason against the whole people. However, there is no reason to anticipate evil. Rather we must trust the good sense of the majority of unionists, who have already shown themselves in more ways than one as patriotic as any other section of the community.

AMERICA'S HELP.

Washington advices of May 3 state that 71 of the German and Austrian interned vessels, which were damaged, will be ready for sea in five months. Immediate efforts are being centred on repairing cargo boats, but later it is intended to convert them into transports for the soldiers to be sent to Europe.

In addition to providing the 10,000 railway workers asked for by France, arrangements were being made to send to France 1500 miles of track and 4000 locomotives. It was realised that this would seriously hamper the American railways, which already are congested. According to the New York "Times" a bill was before Congress authorising the conscription of men for railway service abroad as well as for fighting.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro Ferguson presided at a meeting of the finance committee, and also at a meeting of the Central Council of the Australian Branch of the British Red Cross Society, held at Government House, Melbourne, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. James Ashton, M.L.C. (Sydney), and Miss Miller (Launceston) were the guests of their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Helen Munro Ferguson, at luncheon at Government House, Melbourne, yesterday.

Steps are to be taken to recognise the public services of Captain Glossop, C.B., R.N., to Australia and the Empire, and with this end in view a public meeting will be held at the Town Hall at 3.30 p.m. on Thursday.

In the Melbourne Practice Court yesterday, before Mr. Justice Hood, Sir Allen Taylor was sworn in as a Justice of the Peace for Victoria.

Mr. W. H. Lambert, who was last night elected president of the New South Wales Political Labour League, is the present secretary of the Central Branch of the Australian Workers' Union, which post he has occupied for three years. He is 35 years of age, and has been many years associated with the P.L.L. and trades union movements.

Mr. T. S. Crawford was tendered a social evening and presentation of plate by his supporters at Marrickville on Saturday last. Alderman B. Richards presided. Eulogistic references were made to Mr. Crawford's public actions as M.L.A. for Marrickville for over six years by several speakers, including Mr. W. E. Johnson, M.P., Mr. H. Lamond, M.P., Mr. Robt. Hollis, ex-M.L.A., Mr. T. Hoskins, and Mr. E. Hughes. Mr. Crawford, in replying, said that he was happy in the recollection that his actions had been determined by what he felt to be just, even though he had suffered defeat.

Private William Jackson, V.C., son of Mr. John Jackson, of Gunbar, is amongst a batch of sick and wounded soldiers who will shortly return to New South Wales. As the result of a wound received during the performance of the gallant action that won him the Victoria Cross, he lost his right arm.

Alderman Clarence Bridge and Mrs. Bridge, accompanied by their two daughters, are proceeding to Mesopotamia, where two of their sons (Dr. Reginald Bridge and Lieutenant Wallace Bridge) are on service with the British forces. Another son, Engineer-Lieutenant Clarence Bridge, who recently returned after two years' service in the North Sea, has again been ordered away. Alderman Bridge has arranged to return in time for the opening of the new wool season.

Mr. E. Scott Holland, town clerk of Newcastle, who, after going through a serious operation, spent some weeks in a private hospital in Sydney, is now convalescent, and is recuperating at his daughter's residence. He will be returning to duty in Newcastle in a few weeks.

Mr. Keith L. Barry, who, at the time of enlisting last year, was a medical student, and the official organist to the University of Sydney, has completed his course of training with the Inns of Court O.T.C., London, and has been granted his commission in the infantry. Lieutenant Barry is the eldest son of Mr. Alfred Barry, of Parramatta, and is a Sydney Grammar School boy.

At a special meeting of the Newcastle City Council last night, Mr. J. F. Shine, of Burrowa, was appointed city engineer.

FEDERAL SESSION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Federal Cabinet met this afternoon, and spent about four hours considering important matters of policy preparatory to the assembling of Parliament on Thursday. It will meet again at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning, when most of the time will be devoted to the consideration of the recruiting and repatriation problems.

Senator Millen has completed the draft of his scheme for the repatriation of soldiers, and he will present it to his colleagues to-morrow.

Both Houses of the Federal Parliament will meet at half-past 10 on Thursday morning, when the session will be opened by Sir Edmund Barton and Mr. Justice Isaacs, acting as joint commissioners. His Excellency the Governor will not be present during the morning, and the ceremony will be robbed of the importance which attaches to the delivery of the policy speech, which is usually entrusted to him at the opening of each session. His Excellency will attend at Parliament House at half-past 2 in the afternoon, however, formally, to receive the Speaker.

The ceremony of swearing-in the new members will be performed by Mr. Justice Isaacs, and the House of Representatives will proceed at once to the election of a Speaker, prior to the introduction by the Treasurer, Sir John Forrest, of a Supply Bill, which will be made the occasion for a financial statement. It is not proposed to ask Parliament to deal with any matter other than the Supply Bill, and as soon as that has been disposed of both Houses will adjourn until early in July, when the Governor-General will again attend and deliver the usual policy speech.

The Ministerial party will meet in the Senate clubroom on Wednesday. The chief business will be the selection of the Speaker. It is generally recognised that whoever secures the support of the Ministerial side of the House will be elected as a matter of course. The three members whose names have been most prominently mentioned in connection with the Speakership are Mr. Chanter, who acted as Speaker on a number of occasions in the last Parliament, Mr. Elliot Johnson, a previous Speaker, and Mr. Bruce Smith. Members generally seem to favour Mr. Johnson's chances. Dr. Salmon has also been mentioned as a possible candidate.

FINANCIAL PROPOSALS.

In making his financial statement, the Federal Treasurer is not expected to go further than to carry the figures announced by him in March up to the end of the financial year. Owing to the Customs and Excise receipts not having come up to expectation, the revenue has suffered severely, and there may be a considerable deficit in the ordinary Budget. But the chief question of interest is not what the result of the year's operations will be, but how the Treasurer intends to meet the coming year's obligations, which will exceed the present year's expenditure by many millions of pounds. Although no announcement of the Treasurer's intentions is likely to be made until after the Ministerial policy is set out in the Governor-General's speech, a most important financial proposal has already been the subject of very serious discussion in Government circles. It is understood that, realising the necessity of new taxation, a primage duty on all imports, including those on the free list, has received earnest consideration. On the subject of the percentage to be levied, a difference of opinion is understood to prevail, the question being whether the primage should be levied at the rate of 3 per cent. or 5 per cent. Taking the imports for 1915-1916 which, deducting specie and bullion, reached the value of £76,740,899, a war primage duty of 5 per cent. would realise £3,800,000. A 3 per cent. duty would bring in approximately £2,300,000. The values this year have declined, and, for the coming year, there is also a prospect of imports being restricted. A 5 per cent. duty for the coming financial year would probably not realise more than about £3,400,000, whilst the collections from a duty at the rate of 3 per cent. would be under £2,000,000. If any such proposal be carried into effect, the free list would entirely disappear, but the primage duty would, of course, be special war taxation.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

A most commendable patriotic effort at Boorowa is illustrated in this week's "Mail." The proprietors of Eubindal Estate offered the use of 200 acres to be cropped for the benefit of returned necessitous soldiers in the Boorowa, Binalong, and Galong districts. Neighbouring farmers assembled on two days recently, and ploughed and sowed the whole area. The crop will be insured against hail and fire, and will be harvested and marketed free of expense, so that the entire proceeds will be available for the fund. The illustrations show the ploughs and drills at work, and include some excellent photographic studies. The war pictures, as usual, have plenty of variety. There are fine photographs from the Western front, and several unique naval pictures. A page is devoted to Australians who have gained honours on the battlefield, and there are numerous portraits of killed and wounded soldiers. An illustrated article on the work of the tunnellers at the front is appropriate, in view of the splendid feats performed by them in connection with last week's British advance at Messines and Wytschaete. An appeal is made for reinforcements for this unit. Several attractive photographs show children knitting socks for soldiers. Among many other interesting subjects illustrated are the State hotel recently opened at Babinda, Queensland, church parade of Boy Scouts at Dulwich Hill, a Shakespearean performance at the North Sydney Girls' High School, an Old English Fair in Melbourne, and the recent Australian Comforts Fund interstate conference in Sydney.

THE FIRST DIVISION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Following upon the recent announcement by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) that consideration was being given by the Commonwealth Government to the question of granting furlough to members of the First Division of the Australian Imperial Force who are still serving abroad, to enable them to visit their homes in Australia, many applications are being received from relations to have their soldier kinsmen returned.

Senator Pearce pointed out to-day that, pending a decision by the Government in this matter, no useful purpose is served by submitting applications to the department for the return of individual soldiers of the First Division, as it is the intention that all such soldiers shall be treated alike.

A large number of applications are also being received for the return of soldiers who were not members of the First Division. The Minister, however, states that, whilst he fully appreciates the sacrifices already made in so many cases, such applications can only be acceded to in cases of an exceptional nature, in view of the urgent need of the services of every available fit soldier to bring the war to a successful conclusion.

REPATRIATION.

Although several present thought it premature to discuss matters, in view of Senator Millen's proposals, and sought an adjournment on that ground, it was decided, at a meeting in the vestibule of the Sydney Town Hall yesterday afternoon, to form a city, or central, committee to assist and strengthen the hands of a committee at Gloucester, in arranging to carry out a representative conference on repatriation matters in the Gloucester electorate. The meeting was presided over by Mr. J. T. Wall, and was convened by the member for Gloucester (Mr. R. Atkinson Price).

In connection with the proposed conference, it was recently decided at Gloucester to invite the co-operation of representative men in commercial and industrial circles, representatives of shire and municipal bodies, and of pastoral and farming associations, and other organisations, in order that useful recommendations might be prepared to assist the authorities in framing and giving effect to a comprehensive repatriation scheme. It was stated that Senator Millen would be pleased to receive suggestions from those intimately in touch with commercial, manufacturing, and land matters.

Mr. Walter Morris, a returned soldier, and one of the representatives of New South Wales at a recent conference of the Returned Soldiers and Sailors' Imperial League Council, said that any scheme of repatriation should be made by way of taxation, and not along any charitable channels. If the proposed Gloucester conference intended to bring forward anything based upon charity, then it would be resented most strongly by the returned men.

Mr. Price said there was no suggestion of charity. There was a proposal, for instance, to raise a fund annually for ten years, and to be secured as a charge directed by the Federal Government on all adults on the State rolls.

"The idea," said the chairman, is to bring together the best minds of the community to help the Federal Government. Up to now repatriation has not been satisfactory."

Mr. Wall was appointed chairman of the committee, with Mr. R. A. Price, M.L.A., and Mr. W. T. Armstrong, hon. secretaries; and Mr. Arthur Rickard, hon. treasurer.

In pamphlet form Messrs. R. A. Price and W. T. Armstrong disclosed a scheme based on the adults in the Commonwealth, excluding the soldiers, and providing for £58,500,000 in 10 years, to be allocated under the following headings, and to be worked on a co-operative basis by and for the soldiers:—Pensions for the permanently disabled, commercial and industrial re-education of the disabled, commercial, business, engineering, and general manufacturing fund, widows' and dependents' fund, insurance and endowments, land settlement, artificial limbs and medical fund, and a fund for the presentation to parents of memorial tablets and monuments.

LATE JUDGE PICKBURN.

The Industrial Courts, which were to have sat yesterday, were adjourned till this afternoon out of respect to the memory of the late Judge Pickburn.

When the court opened, Mr. Justice Heydon and Judge Rolin were both on the Bench, and both paid tributes to their deceased colleague.

Mr. Justice Heydon said:—"It is with regret that I have to announce the death of our colleague, who, scarcely more than a week ago, after a hard week's work, left my chambers for his home, apparently in perfect health. He had shown himself to be a great acquisition to this court. His abilities, which are well known to his contemporaries at the University and his comrades at the Bar and the members of the courts before which he practised, were soon discovered to be admirably suited to the work in this jurisdiction. He was diligent and quick, and whilst considerate to all, had a most happy way of preventing any waste of time. He did his work in a way which proved him to be a very valuable public servant, and to all appearances he had before him a long career, which could not but have been in a high degree useful, and honourable. His death is a great public loss. For myself I mourn him on personal grounds. Though my acquaintance with him before his appointment to this court was very slight, and though his appointment was scarcely four months ago, I soon came to feel a high esteem for him, and a regard which I can truly call affectionate. He was an ideal colleague, most reasonable, considerate, willing, fertile in useful suggestions, and fully interested in his work. He had a nature which drew the liking of all with whom he was brought in contact, and had much sympathy for the workers with whose conditions he had to deal. After the long loneliness of so many years' solitary labour in this jurisdiction, it was delightful to me to have congenial colleagues, and no colleague could have been more congenial than the one whom we have now lost."

His Honor concluded with an expression of deepest sympathy with Judge Pickburn's relations.

Judge Rolin said that the death of his colleague came as a shock. "Appointed to this Bench only the other day," said his Honor, "his life offered a fair prospect of long and useful work. How strong and able his intelligence was, how great his capacity and knowledge, how broad and serene his judgment, I myself, in spite of my long knowledge of him at the Bar, did not perhaps fully realise until I met him in the greater intimacy of a colleague on the Bench, and read the clear and able judgments which have demonstrated his great abilities, and which promised us much more of valuable work in this Court. The State has lost a most valuable public servant. For my personal loss as a friend and a colleague I can hardly speak. Cut off in his prime, one can only mourn a death so untimely, and feel our lives the emptier for the loss."

Judge Edmunds, presiding over the Coal Board, also paid a tribute to the deceased Judge, and intimated that on the following day the board would not sit until after the funeral.

OTHER TRIBUTES.

In the course of a sympathetic reference yesterday in the Central Criminal Court his Honor Mr. Justice Pring said: "It is always a sad thing to see a man cut off in the prime of life and usefulness. The late Judge while at the Bar lived up to the best traditions of that profession. He always conducted his cases with thoroughness and ability, and in a spirit of fairness to his opponent. He had only been appointed a Judge of the Industrial Court three or four months ago. During that time he had given promise of great usefulness in that difficult jurisdiction. We now can only offer our sympathy to his widow and children. Though our loss has been great, theirs has been greater."

The Solicitor-General (Mr. J. Garland), who was conducting a case for the Crown in that court, said he endorsed all that had been said by his Honor. The Bar, Bench, and community had suffered. At the Bar the late Judge had commanded the respect of his fellow-members, and his appointment to the Bench had been warmly hailed. During his short occupancy of the Judgeship he had given great promise of a brilliant future. The sympathy of all went out to the bereaved.

On taking his seat on the Quarter Sessions Bench Judge Docker said that the late Judge Pickburn had been distinguished as a barrister, and had the opportunity been given him he would have been equally distinguished as a Judge. Mr. J. C. Gannon, K.C., on behalf of the Bar, referred to the late Judge Pickburn as a most lovable, highly cultured man of admirable integrity and ability. Counsel's endorsement of his Honor's remarks was supported by the Crown Prosecutor, Mr. A. F. Dawson.

In the District Court Judge Backhouse said that the unexpected illness, followed by the death, of Judge Pickburn had come as a great shock to all. He had distinguished himself at the University, and at the Bar he soon showed his ability. He had also those qualities which make many friends, and he was devoted to his home. "Great was his success," said the Judge, "but it would have been greater if he had lived. Of him we can affectionately say, 'Well-done-outlived death.'"

SHIPBUILDING.

PROBLEM OF LABOUR.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The question of establishing the shipbuilding industry in Australia was considered at length by the Federal Cabinet to-day. The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes), stated subsequently that the Cabinet had considered four proposals—one to build ships wholly of steel, one to build ships with steel frames and wooden sheathing, one to build ships all of wood, and one to build ships of reinforced concrete. It was decided that additional information as to the sea-worthiness of the concrete vessels should be obtained before the proposal to build them is seriously considered.

The Cabinet was strongly in favour of the policy of establishing a shipbuilding industry, but it regarded the favourable co-operation of Labour as a condition precedent.

Mr. Hughes added that a conference would be held to-morrow afternoon at which representatives of the various industrial organisations interested in the industry would be present. The matter would then be gone into thoroughly, and he hoped that a satisfactory understanding would be arrived at. The Minister for the Navy (Mr. Cook) and himself would represent the Commonwealth Ministry at the conference, which would be held in private.

NEW SOUTH WALES REPRESENTATIVES.

A large number of union officials have left for Melbourne to attend the Shipbuilding Conference, which has been convened by the Prime Minister, and which opens to-day. Amongst those who left by the express last night were the following:—Messrs. James O'Brien (Commonwealth secretary of Operative Painters' Federation), W. Bathgate (secretary Federated Moulders), Wolstenholme and Wilson (Amalgamated Engineers), Lenehan and Miller (Progressive Carpenters), Newberry (Amalgamated Carpenters), Mahoney (Dockers' Union), Miller (Sheet Metal Workers), Bryant and Boyd (Australasian Engineers), Cassidy and Hardy (Federated Shipwrights).

AMELIORATION COMMITTEE.

During last week the Australia Day Fund Amelioration Committee expended £1700 in assisting 962 sick and wounded soldiers and sailors, including 85 fresh applicants.

Altogether the committee has spent £104,363, comprising 59,930 payments, in alleviating 7307 individual cases, or 81 per cent. of the total number of men returned to New South Wales.

LATE SIR MATTHEW HARRIS.

The large and representative attendance of citizens at the service in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, and at the graveside in the Presbyterian portion of the Rookwood Cemetery yesterday morning, testified to the esteem in which the late Sir Matthew Harris was held, not only in private life, but also in those many spheres of activity in which his public-spiritedness counted for so much. The service in St. Stephen's was brief and impressive. The Rev. John Ferguson conducted the service. The cortege afterwards proceeded to the Mortuary Station, the mourners proceeding thence by special train to Rookwood, where the deceased's body was laid to rest in the family vault. The service was conducted by the Rev. John Ferguson, assisted by the Rev. J. Muir.

Amongst those present, either at St. Stephen's or at the interment, were Mesdames Geo. Harris, M. J. Harris, and Reg. W. S. Harris, and Misses Margaret Harris and Dorothy Gladys, and Ada Harris, Dr. W. H. Harris, and Messrs. Geo. Harris, M. J. Harris, R. S. Harris, A. L. Harris, Lionel Harris, Victor Harris, V. A memorial service will be held in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, on Sunday morning, and will be conducted by the Rev. J. Ferguson.

RICH IRON ORE DEPOSITS.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Some of the reports prepared by Dr. Jack for presentation to Parliament indicate that Queensland possesses enormous deposits of iron. One of the chief deposits is at Iron Island, described by Dr. Jack as "rich haematite ore," and the report adds, that unlimited quantities of purest limestone are available in the vicinity. At Mount Lary, about 106 miles from Cairns on the Chillagoe line, Dr. Jack reported the location of an enormous outcrop of exceedingly pure magnetite, in which crystals containing as much as a cubic foot can be obtained. He described Iron Mountain at Kangaroo Hills, near Townsville, as an enormous bed of magnetic iron ore of vast proportions. A special report was prepared of Mount Leviathan, in the Cloncurry district, as "a mass say 300ft high, and a quarter-of-a-mile in diameter at its base, of purest possible iron ore, the greater part of which is specular iron ore." In the same report he described Mount Pisa as a hill of iron ore, very like Mount Leviathan, but not rising in such an enormous mass. Dr. Jack reported upon a large lode of pure magnetic ore on Wild River, 60 miles from Mareeba, also upon the deposits at Gladstone, at Pittsworth on the Darling Downs (in which the assay was 62 per cent. of iron), at Biggenden, Degilbo, and Mount Perry, and stated that other large deposits were to be found on the Don River, in the Mount Morgan district.

LOST WITH THE ARABIA.

Though at the time the Arabia was torpedoed last November it was reported that no lives were lost, it appears that Aubrey E. Warren, an Australian munition worker, who was on his way to England, is missing. His father, Mr. George H. Warren, of Croydon Park, Sydney, has been informed by the agent for Vicker's, Ltd., that his son was not among those landed at Malta. "It is most unfortunate," says the letter, "that your son should be the only one missing out of 121, and you have my deepest sympathy in your misfortune." Every effort has been made to trace the missing man, who was last seen leaving the smokeroom to go on deck just after the Arabia was struck, but no definite information as to his fate is available, and it seems certain that he must have lost his life.

FRONT AGAIN QUIET.

INCESSANT RAIDING.

LONDON, June 11.

Little beyond incessant raiding and considerable artillery activity is reported by Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig.

SUNDAY, ISSUED 1.25 P.M.:—

We gained further ground at a number of points southward of Ypres.

We made successful raids last night south-eastward of Epehy, southward of Armentieres, and north-eastward of Ypres.

We repulsed hostile raiders eastward of la Verguier (north of St. Quentin), and south-westward of La Bassee.

SUNDAY, ISSUED 11.35 P.M.:—

No further counter-attacks have been made south of Ypres, but enemy artillery is active here, also in the neighbourhood of Fontaine-les-Croisilles. We successfully carried out raids south of the Souchez River.

We brought down six aeroplanes and drove down three others out of control. Three of ours are missing.

THE FRENCH FRONT.

MONDAY, ISSUED 1.5 A.M.:—

A violent artillery attack in the sector of Nieuport les Bains (on the Belgian coast) severely damaged the German trenches.

Twenty-one enemy aeroplanes were brought down, and two captive balloons descended in flames during the week ended on Thursday last.

GERMAN REPORT.

ISSUED SUNDAY, 5.25 P.M.:—

We repulsed several British night advances between Ypres and Ploegsteert Wood. The enemy lost in Flanders 16 aeroplanes on Friday and Saturday.

AUSTRALIAN MINERS

"LIFTING" HILL 60.

Mr. Percival Phillips, telegraphing on Sunday night from France, says: There are no happier men in this happy army of the north than the miners. They toiled underground for months, and prepared the chambers for the explosive charges. They courted death as freely as the infantry charging through broken wire. They dug and carried a way through narrow, tortuous channels beneath no man's land, some passages being only 3ft by 2ft, using infinite pains and skill, working in semi darkness, breathing foul air, and facing a variety of hidden dangers, boring their way cautiously foot by foot, with ears attuned for the slightest sound. The success of these tunnelers, who came to France with years of experience in mining, fully compensated them for their weary effort and days and nights of semi-suffocation in the bowels of the earth.

They regarded Hill 60 with ferocious delight. During the months of preparation they got to know Hill 60 as "Our Hill," using the phrase in a grim business-like way. It would have been extremely disquieting to the complacent Wurtembergers if they could have heard these dangerous, square-jawed Australians quietly prophesying the doom of the German position as they wielded pick and shovel. The miners narrowly escaped discovery and death. The German pioneers were unconscious of the proximity of the Australians—so warily had the Australians crept forward—but the Germans actually mined within 40ft of the Australians' main charge under Hill 60, and within 20ft of a gallery, but were unaware of their presence.

On another occasion the enemy was so close that he dislodged portion of the roof of an Australian mine chamber, the earth falling upon a stack of explosives. The Australians heard a guttural conversation. Only a thin layer of earth separated them from their enemies.

The Australians overcame many difficulties. At one time 100 miners together pumped out the water from a 400-feet stretch of gallery. On another occasion the Germans blew in the front line. The miners ran out of their dugouts without their boots and chased out the raiders. A week ago the Germans blew in a new mine gallery, and two Australian listeners were buried alive. One was imprisoned 17 hours and the other 40 hours before they were dug out, unhurt. Both throughout their critical situation recorded every sound they heard in the darkness.

"I have found no finer record of cool courage and devotion to duty in the annals of this war," says Mr. Phillips, "than that of these two men."

Mr. Phillips then paints a picture of the scene preceding the explosion of the mine. In the misty moonlight thousands of figures were lying or crouching on the ground: they had been brought up from their dugouts in order to bear the tremendous shock better. Two minutes before the appointed moment men poured up silently from the depths, passing a group of officers who, in a dugout, were surrounding the fatal brass lever. One of them afterwards said that the final two minutes seemed interminable. The final 30 seconds, as they watched the second hand crawl round the dial of the watch, were the most intense strain.

When a young officer jammed down the lever the ground billowed. The noise of the explosion was prolonged by a mighty cheer. The men could not help it. They had been ordered to observe the strictest silence, and there were even police on duty to enforce silence, but when the mines lifted, and the miners realised that their long work was a glorious success, they could not restrain their jubilation. Anyhow, the Germans were past bearing their cheers.

AUSTRALIAN STEADINESS

Mr. Bean, official correspondent with the Australian forces, cables:—

To-day (Thursday) the Germans have turned on to our advanced troops all the guns which they withdrew yesterday. They first searched the trenches methodically with heavy howitzer shells, working along them from front to rear front, and from flank to flank. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon numbers of German troops were seen collecting at various points. Our barrage came down on them about ten minutes later. Three times the German field guns suddenly opened an intense bombardment, the latest being at 9 o'clock, just before dusk. Behind this the Germans attacked.

As far as at present is known this attack extended along the whole front held by the Australians beyond Messines, reaching the British lines in the north. The bombardment for a time was terrific, but it has now eased, and news has arrived that the Australians are still holding the advanced line.

To-day's bombardment was at one time the heaviest ever experienced by Australian troops. Men of all the latest reinforcements showed themselves magnificently equal to the old hands. Stretcher-bearers, runners, and Lewis gunners all exhibited exactly the same spirit. During the height of the bombardment an officer saw a man exposing himself recklessly. "Come down, you fool," he said, "you'll be killed for a certainty." The reply was, "I cannot, sir, I have a wounded man here, and I cannot leave him;" and he brought that wounded man through by some miracle.

The New Zealanders found in headquarters in Messines a German order that the ridge was to be held at all costs. There was also a message from the German Emperor and other high persons to the 3rd Bavarian Division, consoling it for heavy losses in repeated recent battles. Its commander assured it in this document that "an iron cross division must be a double duty division." Some officer in the division had added in blue pencil, "in order that its commander may win laurel wreaths." In the same headquarters was found a series a messages. The last message ran, "a tank is 500 yards from this headquarters, and is approaching."

A MAN-MADE EARTHQUAKE.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, telegraphing on Sunday morning, says: The ground gained at Messines remains firm in our hands. Our artillery is breaking any attempts to counter-attack, in most cases before the enemy is able to advance. Only at Klein Zillebeke, on the northern flank of the battle line, did the Germans gain a temporary footing, where many of their dead lie, owing to the fierce fighting which is still in progress.

I saw new batches of prisoners mopped up on Friday night. It is no wonder they do not regret their capture after their experiences of our gunfire. They are young boys and middle-aged men. All are sturdy and strong. They are extraordinarily ignorant of the world-wide hatred their country has aroused, and expected admiration for the way they had fought. They want the war to end quickly, and do not care much whether it ends with a German victory.

After inspecting the smashed German trenches I understand the desire of German soldiers to see the end of this kind of warfare. It is a marvel to me that any prisoners were taken alive. Every yard had been ploughed and swept by shell-fire. Messines Ridge was utterly bare of even a blade of grass, and deeply scarred and pitted by the tempest of shells flung against it. Some bodies of German soldiers lie amidst the ruins, but most of the killed lie buried under masses of earth, which were flung up by shells. Others were buried in tunnels, which fell in, or buried by the wild upheaval of the mines, which opened the earth beneath them in yawning chasms hundreds of yards wide and 60ft deep.

Mining under the German lines had been carried on for more than a year by tunnelling companies from Australia, New Zealand, and English mining districts. It was hard, dangerous toil, because of enemy counter-mining. There were frightful moments when the tunnellers heard the sound of picks very close, and had to rush out lest they should be blown into the next world. The miners relieved one another in the darkness lest enemy aircraft should see them, and suspect something.

AUSTRALIAN TUNNELLERS.

The Australian tunnellers waited on Wednesday night in a dugout not far away for the moment when the year's work would be accomplished by the touch of a little spring on a metal plate, from which an electric wire ran to the mine-shaft below Hill 60.

They waited with nerves strung tensely, deeply excited. Though the quietest knew exactly the explosive power of the tons of ammonal packed under the enemy's positions, there is always a risk of misadventure—an appalling risk of failure. This work—a man-made earthquake—is a tricky business. A long spell of intense silence was broken at 3.10 a.m. "Fire," said an officer. The metal disc was touched. There was a noise of the earth in travail—a rending, rushing noise, which broke out in a vast roar, like a cliff falling down a precipice, as Hill 60 opened and let forth a great eruption of flaming clods. The troops who were waiting to attack rose up at a signal. Some were flung down by the explosion. The Wurtembergers and Jaegers rose from holes, holding up trembling hands and asking for mercy. They shook with the terror of the explosion. Some were cowering in dark pits, which before the explosion had been deep dugouts and observation posts, heavily strengthened with concrete.

FANTASTIC AIRMEN.

The British casualties in this battle, in comparison with other battles, remain light. They are estimated at 10,000 all told, while the majority represent minor injuries. One might well have expected them to have been five times as heavy.

There are fantastic stories available of the airmen's doings. One attacked a German aerodrome, swooped on a machine gun, and routed the gunner, chased trains, and fired at the windows, scattered detachments, stampeded a convoy, and, having discovered troops near Warneton massing for a counter-attack, shot many, and the rest fled. A second airman, finding himself being shelled by guns mounted on lorries, dived, and directed a fusillade at the gunners, who fled. A third silenced four machine guns in a strong emplacement. Others cleared out trenches, and swooped on field guns, transports, and moving vehicles of every description. One almost collided with a motor car.

NEW BRITISH WEAPON.

It is asserted that, as a result of air-reconnaissances, 72 German batteries were silenced on Thursday.

Correspondents state that one of the new British weapons is called "olleans" or "boiling oil." It throws a considerable distance projectiles containing highly inflammable matter, which burst on concussion, scattering fire widely. Prisoners state that the new weapon spreads terror, and it did great harm.

JOYOUS PRISONERS.

The "Petit Parisien's" correspondent on the British front says:—"The age of most German prisoners captured at Messines is about 17 to 18. With the spontaneity of youth they did not seek to hide their joy at having finished fighting. The officers said the German leaders for a long time have not counted upon winning, and they did not believe submarines can bring Germany victory."

AMERICA IN EARNEST

ARMIES AND FOOD FOR EUROPE.

NEW YORK, June 10.

The figures have now been received, practically complete, from 29 States and the District of Columbia (out of 41 States) showing the number of eligible men who registered on June 5 for service under the new conscription system. The figures are:—

Men registered	5,808,955
Estimate of eligible men..	6,514,216
Percentage of registration to estimate	89.1

The totals in the other 12 States are not complete. The estimate of eligible men in the whole of the United States is believed to be between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000.

The Washington representative of the "New York World" declares that American activities will not cease with the despatch to Europe of the division of regulars commanded by General Pershing. American troops will be sent to Europe in the near future in greater numbers than has been supposed.

Mr. David F. Houston, Secretary for Agriculture, urges that there should be an "anti-dumping" clause in the new Food Control Bill. He emphasised the urgent need of legislation giving control over food. He declared that "to maintain the subsistence of the Allies was a political and moral obligation as well as a military necessity. The wheat crop of practically the entire world showed a serious reduction in the past year, and in the coming year it promises little or no increase."

The Produce Exchange has commenced a campaign in favour of "corn bread for breakfast" during the war, and so increase the wheat for the Allies.

The Department of Commerce urges that whale, porpoise, and dolphin meat, as a war-time food, would increase the food available for the Allies.

In the course of a speech at Philadelphia Mr. Theodore Roosevelt declared that the United States had utterly failed to prepare for war, and it was now endeavouring, with infinite confusion, hurry and blundering, to repair the damage wrought by a foolish refusal to face facts. They must give permanence to their military strength, and also prepare for the tasks of peace. Thus America would gain, even though compelled to prepare at the dictation of the Prussian taskmaster in the spiked helmet. "We have nominally come to the help of the Entente. We really owe even our ability to tardily prepare to the fleets and armies of the war-worn Allies."

The New York newspaper, "Evening Telegram," states that three arrests took place as the result of a discovery of a wireless plant on the roof of a Broadway theatre.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

The Washington correspondent of the United Press Agency reports that Mr. Robert Lansing (Secretary of State) has announced that Lord Northcliffe's visit to America is wholly connected with commercial affairs. Lorth Northcliffe does not succeed Mr. Balfour as head of the British mission to America, as was reported in some quarters.

CANADIAN POLITICAL CRISIS.

A message from Ottawa states that Mr. Esloff L. Patenaude (Secretary of State) has resigned from the Canadian Cabinet.

ITALIANS ENTER GREECE.

YANINA OCCUPIED.

Messages received from Athens state that Italian troops from Southern Albania have advanced into Northern Greece, and have occupied Yanina, which is the chief town of that region. The Greek authorities withdrew without offering any resistance. The Greek Government is making a protest against the action of the Italians.

CHINESE DISORDER.

PEKING, June 10.

General Chang Shun, the former military governor of Anhui Province, has demanded the dissolution of the Chinese Parliament within 48 hours. Several thousands of his troops have arrived.

The President has refused to dissolve Parliament unless in compliance with the Constitution. Parliament is urging the President not to agree to a dissolution.

LATE MAJOR REDMOND.

"MY BEST FOR IRELAND."

In the last letter sent by Major William Redmond, M.P., who was killed in action last week, and who was a brother of Mr. John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, to his wife, he said:—"Don't fret —just pray. If I don't come back, you will know that I have done my best for Ireland and for everyone."

SAILORS AND PACIFICISTS

RAMSAY MACDONALD A "PRISONER."

The Seamen's and Firemen's Union, which has decided to refuse to work any ship on which Messrs. Ramsay Macdonald and Jowett (the peace propagandists) propose to sail for Stockholm and Petrograd, discovered on Saturday night through its pickets that the two men were leaving London by train. A warning was thereupon telegraphed to all ports.

The chairman, at a demonstration in Trafalgar-square on Sunday, after protesting against granting passports to these men, read the following telegram from a union official at a certain port:—"We have Macdonald and Jowett prisoners here. The crew refuses to sail with them."

Mrs. Pankhurst and Mr. G. H. Roberts (Labour M.P. and Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade), who have also been granted passports to Russia, are held up with Mr. Ramsay Macdonald.

"SOMETHING TO BE THANKFUL FOR."

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Commenting upon this message to-day the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) said:—"I do not know whether it is a fact or not, but if it is, it is something to be thankful for."

ENEMY CREDIT FALLING.

The value of the German mark and the Austrian kroner has fallen lower than has ever been known before in Berne, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, and Stockholm.

RUSSIAN DISCIPLINE

RE-ESTABLISHMENT SOUGHT FOR.

LONDON, June 11.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Morning Post" reports that there are signs of increasing discipline among the Russian soldiery. Distinguished regiments are drastically weeding out undesirable elements. The Cossacks are at the head of the movement. Several thousand Cossacks, fully armed, paraded in Petrograd in perfect martial array. The significance of the demonstration was thoroughly understood, indicating an early restoration of order.

Advices from Vladivostock state that a commission of American railway experts has arrived there to offer its services to Russia. It consists of leading experts in railway organisation, traffic control, and engineering.

AN OFFER OF PEACE.

A message from Petrograd says:—Three German officers presented themselves on the Dvinsk front and stated that they were acting on behalf of Hindenburg in saying that Germany offered a separate peace. Having no credentials with them, they were sent back.

A wireless message has since been received from Hindenburg which confirms the offer, and states that Germany is acting in agreement with Austria-Hungary, who was making similar overtures.

The news was conveyed to the Workmen and Soldiers' Council, which was urged to gather round the flag in defence of liberty and the struggle for universal peace.

JAPANESE SHIPS.

TOKIO, June 10.

Baron Kenjiro Den (Minister for Communications) says:—Japan is willing to build ships for the Allies, but we have not the material.

GERMAN SHIPS LEAVE OSTEND

The Admiralty report: The latest reconnaissance above Ostend shows that all large shipping has been removed. Two destroyers which were reported being towed to Zeebrugge were probably damaged by the bombardment. The harbour appears deserted.

WAR NOTES.

THOROUGHNESS OF THE OFFENSIVE.

Sir Douglas Haig's reports, which were issued on Sunday, reveal no fresh developments of importance along the front on which the British delivered their offensive on Thursday last. The enemy had not essayed a repetition of his earlier heavy counter-attack, and, apart from an occasional raid at other points of the British front, the fighting appears to have eased off after the terrific outburst which resulted in the capture of the Messines Ridge. The suddenness of this lull is evidently to be accounted for by the fact that the latest offensive went off so smoothly. The advance was carried out without a hitch, as far as could be seen, and all objectives were reached according to time-table. The result has been that little or no straightening out of awkward corners has been necessary. At some points the line has been brought forward slightly, as Sir Douglas Haig suggests in his noon report on Sunday, but there has been an absence of those incidents which were experienced during the early part of the Somme battle, when the attackers were unable to make progress on certain sectors. Even after the attack of April 9 last the enemy continued to cling for a time to portion of the northern slopes of Vimy Ridge, but on this latest occasion the task appears to have been carried out most thoroughly.

HILL 60 AND THE MINERS.

Messrs. Percival Phillips and Philip Gibbs supply this morning lengthy accounts of the efficient work carried out by the mining corps prior to the attack delivered on the Wytschaete salient last week. Their laudatory references to the work carried out by the Australian company justify the confidence placed in this unit of experts at the time it left these shores. Hill 60 will always live in English history on account of the struggles which occurred there during the second battle of Ypres in April and May, 1915, but it must now have a special interest for Australians on account of the part which Australian miners played in the destruction of this position, which has cost both the British and Germans so many lives in the past. Hill 60 is the highest point of the Klein Zillebeke ridge, about three miles south-east of Ypres. It is only about 60 feet above the level of the surrounding country, and originally consisted of a small open space of ploughed land surrounded on all sides by woods. This is not by any means the first time it has been mined, and when Sir John French decided to attack it on April 17, 1915, five galleries had been driven under it. The mines were exploded at 7 p.m. on that date, when the effect was also described as being similar to that of an earthquake. The British succeeded in capturing the hill at that time, and, although they were continually being attacked, they managed to hold on to the greater portion of their positions until May 6, 1915, when the Germans recaptured the hill with the assistance of gas, which was at that time a comparatively new weapon. Thanks to the efficient work of the Australian miners, Hill 60 should not cause the British much trouble in future.

BELGIAN ARTILLERY ACTIVE.

A French communique refers to a violent artillery attack in the sector of Nieuport les Bains, for which the Belgian gunners were apparently responsible, and as a result of which the enemy's trenches were severely damaged. Nieuport les Bains is on the coast and at the extreme left of the allied line in the west. There may be nothing portentous about this artillery activity amongst the sand dunes near the mouth of the Yser, but it reminds us that the sorely tried Belgian army is still a factor which the enemy cannot overlook during the coming months. It was on this front that the enemy made one of his formidable attempts to force a passage to the Channel ports about the middle of October, 1914. The Belgians were at that time hard pressed by von Beseler, when welcome relief came from the sea in the shape of enfilading fire from the British monitors Humber, Severn, and Mersey. Later in the same month the enemy forces under the command of the Duke of Wurtemberg again attempted to break through, and were only foiled in their attempt by the flooding of the Yser, which was effected by damming the lower reaches of the river near Nieuport, a task which was carried out under the cover of the British guns from the sea. To avoid the flooded area the Belgians southward of Nieuport fell back to the Nieuport-Dixmude railway. They continued to hold Nieuport itself, however, which accounts for the remarkable shape of the allied line near the extreme left, where it runs almost due north-west from near Dixmude to the southern outskirts of Nieuport. From here it runs almost due east for a little over a mile, where it swings right round again to the north-west, thus covering Nieuport and the mouth of the Yser Canal. It is on this extreme north-western sector that the Belgian artillery has been active, but there is as yet nothing to show that their activity presages an attempt to push further along the coast road in this region.

ITALIANS AT YANINA.

The occupation of Yanina by Italian cavalry is another indication of Italy's increased activity on the eastern side of the Adriatic since the Rome Conference. On that occasion she evidently agreed to accept wider responsibilities in Albania, and secure the gap between Valona and General Sarrail's left, westward of Monastir. The appearance of her troops near Berat recently suggested that she was taking precautions against any hostile move from the northward along the Albanian roads. Some time before this Italian troops were reported to have occupied Konitza, situated in Greek territory, just across the southern border of Albania, and within the neutral zone previously fixed by the Allies to the northward of Thessaly and Epirus. Yanina lies about 20 miles south-south-east of Konitza, and is therefore well within Greek territory. Italy has evidently occupied these two towns as precautionary measures against possible Greek treachery, although it may appear to the Greeks to be an attempt to secure possession of Epirus. Yanina stands near the junction of three roads, one of which leads southward to the Greek port of Preveza. The second road runs in a west-north-westerly direction to the Albanian port of San Quaranta, at present occupied by the Italians. The third road follows a north-easterly direction across the neutral zone, where it connects up with several thoroughfares which form part of General Sarrail's communications behind the Macedonian front.

RECENT BOMBARDMENT OF OSTEND.

The latest reconnaissance over Ostend has given additional proof of the effective nature of the recent bombardment, and more than justifies the vigorous policy recently adopted by the Admiralty regarding attacks on these enemy bases on the North Sea coast. It is difficult to say to what extent this decision has affected the submarine campaign, and it would probably be attributing too much importance to the attacks if we concluded that the recent steady decrease in the number of victims of under-water vessels was directly due to this cause. That falling-off in the number of merchantmen destroyed by submarines during the past few weeks is due mainly to the efficiency of the organisation which controls the various services which are continually working in order to keep the sea routes safe. The work of that organisation has, however, been assisted to no small extent by the recent attacks on these bases on the coast of Belgium. These places may not be absolutely essential for the maintenance of an under-water campaign by Germany, but they have undoubtedly assisted materially in the conduct of the campaign. The Admiralty's statement that the harbour at Ostend appears to be deserted, shows that the enemy fears the recent attack will be renewed, and this precaution, combined with his decision to remove the two damaged destroyers to Zeebrugge, is undeniable evidence of the effective nature of the British bombardment.

MARTIN-PLACE MEETING.

At the recruiting meeting in Martin-place yesterday, which was conducted by Lieut. Killeen, seven men came on the platform as volunteers.

Mr. Valentine A. Spence, who is assisting as a voluntary worker in the Recruiting Office, Commonwealth Bank-buildings, was the first speaker.

Ex-Senator David Watson pointed out that fit men of the military age who were born in Australia, as well as the men who had come here from the old country to better their condition, should not shirk their responsibilities, with the Empire in danger and the freedom of the Commonwealth in peril. Every man who was fit for military service must play his part. In his own case he had the excuse of physical unfitness. If Australians were nearer the titanic struggle for supremacy, and could hear the roar of the big guns, there would be more enthusiasm in recruiting. As it was, they should remember that they had as much at stake as the British Isles. And they should not forget what they owed to the defence of their shores by the British Navy. As an advocate of the voluntary system he believed that Australia would yet rise to the occasion under that system. The position had reached the stage when they must either make the sacrifice they were called upon to make or sit down to await their doom. That recruiting meeting was an opportunity for men who should enlist to show their sense of national honour and their loyalty to the grand old flag.

Mr. H. F. Barnet, Mayor of St. Kilda, Melbourne, who was invited to speak, said that passing through Sydney on business he was glad of the opportunity to make an appeal for recruits.

Two recruits came on the platform at the conclusion of Mr. Barnet's short, pointed, and good-humoured speech.

Private Louis Andrew Stuart, the boy soldier who won the Military Medal at the age of 17, and who said he was trying hard to get back to the firing line, and Sergeant Browne, another returned soldier, were the other speakers.

The Anzac Band played "Boys of the Dardanelles," before Lieut. Killeen closed the meeting with cheers for the King.

RECRUITS AND INSURANCE PREMIUMS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Ina letter to the secretary of the National Federation Committee, Lieutenant G. J. C. Dyett, organising secretary of the State Recruiting Committee, points out that a large percentage of the remaining eligible men are deterred from volunteering by financial obligations, and that in his opinion many recruits would be secured if facilities could be afforded for the payment of their insurance premiums, interest on loans, and other such debts. He suggests, therefore, that a public fund for this purpose be opened to receive subscriptions.

TO-DAY'S MEETINGS.

Address to wharf-labourers, Sussex-street, city, lunch hour: Sergt.-major M'Donald, Sergt. T. O'Sullivan, S.S.M. Taylor, Sergt. R. K. Watkins.

Liverpool Town Hall, 8 p.m.: Mr. Russell Sinclair, Lantern lecture, "Munition Workers in Great Britain," and address by Miss R. S. Evans.

AWARDED THE MILITARY CROSS.

Mr. John Dill, of the woolwash, Condobolin, has been notified that his son, 2nd-Lieutenant Leslie Herbert Dill, has been awarded the Military Cross. Previously he was promoted on the field, and has been in hospital since May 21 suffering from a gunshot wound in the back. He is 23 years of age, and enlisted two years ago, seeing service in Egypt as well as in France. A brother, Private Charles Douglas Dill, aged 26 years, is in Egypt.

Information has been received by Mrs. A. L. Harden, late of Kimo, Birrell-street, Bondi, that her second son, Lieutenant Guy B. Harden, of the Royal Engineers, has been awarded the Military Cross. He was a prominent member of the Sydney University Football Club.

SOLDIERS' HOMES.

At the opening of the Liverpool Voluntary Workers' Fete, Mr. R. B. Orchard, M.P., in the course of his remarks said that as there were many thousands of men in the Commonwealth who were unable or unwilling to go to the front, legislation should be introduced to organise the man-power and compel them to devote a certain number of hours per month in building homes, preparing farms, and doing other work of a similar nature so that we might be to some extent prepared for our soldiers when they return from the war.

LATE WAR NEWS.

BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, June 11.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his noon report of Monday, says:—

There has been considerable reciprocal artillerying southward of Ypres and eastward of Epehy, where we dispersed hostile assemblies.

We successfully raided south-westward of La Bassee, damaging trenches and mine galleries.

We also raided eastward of Vermelles and southward of Armentieres.

We slightly advanced our line southward of Messines.

THE MESSINES BATTLE.

The French Commentator, M. Tudesq, writes that six months were occupied in creating fresh saps extending two kilometres to the far slopes from the crest of the hill. The tunnellers dug nineteen pockets, stopping underneath a similar number of strongly cemented armed enemy fortresses. Quadrangular wells were sunk and crammed with the most powerful explosives, about 25 tons being placed in each. Everything was completed by the end of winter. Since January, German first-line troops were living above a slumbering inferno.

The Paris "Matin's" correspondent at Wytschaete states that the British casualties totalled 8000. He estimates the German casualties at between 30,000 and 40,000. The correspondent adds: The light batteries of a single British division fired 170,000 shells, and the heavy batteries 80,000 in one sector alone.

CONSCRIPTION IN CANADA.

The New York "Tribune's" Ottawa correspondent telegraphs that it may now be stated positively that the Conscription Bill will go through the House, although it may take a month. The supporters of the Premier, Sir Robert Borden, can carry any war measure.

Every member and huge crowds are expected when the House resumes tomorrow. While Sir Wilfrid Laurier is known to be willing to drop the Liberal leadership, it is extremely doubtful whether his followers will allow him to do so. There is no outstanding Liberal figure commanding such general support as Sir Wilfrid Laurier. No election is now probable.

AMERICAN OFFICERS IN FRANCE.

The officers of General Pershing's staff have arrived in Paris.

AUSTRIA AND PEACE.

According to an Amsterdam message Austria semi-officially denies that an army deputation has gone to Russia to negotiate for peace.

SPANISH MINISTRY.

Senor E. Dato has, according to a message from Madrid, formed a new Spanish Ministry.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

Lord Northcliffe, who is on a commercial visit, has arrived in America.

RIOT IN DUBLIN.

COUNT PLUNKETT ARRESTED.

POLICE OFFICER KILLED.

LONDON, June 11.

There has been a riot in Dublin.

Count Plunkett (the Sinn Feiner who was recently elected for the North Roscommon seat, but who has so far refused to enter the House of Commons) and four others have been arrested.

The trouble arose in connection with a meeting of protest against the treatment of Irish political prisoners.

A police inspector named Mills was killed.

A later message states:—An attempt to hold a prohibited meeting in Dublin on Sunday evening culminated in a riot. When Count Plunkett and a man named Brugha drove up in a motor near Liberty Hall, about 1000 surged round the car. Brugha called out "The British Government will not allow us freedom of speech." A policeman pulled him from the car. Plunkett tried to stop the mob from shouting. He also was arrested. Meanwhile, the police dispersed the greater part of the mob. Inspector Mills was escorting the prisoners when someone felled him with a stick. He died later.

SUGAR INDUSTRY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The undertaking asked by the Prime Minister from the Queensland Ministry, that no legislation affecting the sugar industry should be passed by the State Legislature during the term of the sugar agreement, without the approval of the Commonwealth Ministry, is still awaited. Mr. Hughes stated to-day that this undertaking was essential because such legislation might make conditions necessary for smooth working under the award unstable. Mr. Hughes said that he had received to-day the following telegram from the Premier of Queensland:—"Referring to your telegram of the 8th inst., it is not the intention of the Queensland Government to introduce any legislation affecting the sugar industry during the currency of the proposed agreement, except the Sugar Cane Prices Amendment Bill." "This," said Mr. Hughes, "I do not regard as at all satisfactory. It is impossible to say what the precise effect the decisions of the Cane Boards created under this bill would have. I have telegraphed to Mr. Ryan that the Commonwealth cannot agree to any legislation affecting the sugar industry that has not been first submitted for its approval."

BELGIAN CONSUL'S FUND.

Many inquiries have been made at the Belgian Consulate to ascertain if the collections for relief in Belgium are to be discontinued owing to America having assumed all financial responsibility for the work of the Relief Commission. From different official sources, M. Watteeuw, the Belgian Consul, is able to confirm the statement regarding America, and consequently will not receive any further contributions for the Food Fund. But at the same time he points out that it would be undesirable to close the "Belgian Consul's Fund," as appeals are by each mail received from different benevolent institutions directly assisting Belgium, such as the Belgium Red Cross, the Belgian Orphan Fund, Fund for the Belgian Prisoners in Germany, assistance for the Belgian children refugees in other countries, Babies' Milk Fund, etc. All these different institutions, he states, have the most responsible committees, and as Belgium herself, so oppressed by the Germans, cannot assist them, it is only from other parts of the world that money can be collected."

SERIOUS FLOODS.

SIX BODIES RECOVERED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Police and civilians in several boats engaged in dragging operations at Wangaratta, where six persons were drowned, have recovered the bodies of Mr. T. Rhodes, Mr. J. Lee, Mrs. L. J. Richards, Councillor J. M. Nicol, and Misses Gladys and Lily Richards.

Reports from Tocumwal state that the Murray rose with great rapidity during Sunday, and this morning at 7 o'clock it was 19ft 9in above summer level. The river has risen since then, and the indicator is now under water. The levees which protect the town have broken in two places, but the unceasing efforts of many willing workers have held the water in check. From the New South Wales side of the river no Victorian land can be seen, as all the country for miles is under water. The Victorian levees, which are about two miles from the natural river bank, have given way in three places. The main road from Tocumwal to Strathmerton has been washed away, and it is, therefore, impossible to ascertain the extent of the flood ing in that locality. The greatest point of danger for the Tocumwal township is the levee bank at Barooga, about five miles up stream, where a bend in the river throws the full force of the water against it. All business is at a standstill, stores and banks, etc., being closed, as every available man is working on the banks. One grazier had about 100 sheep caught in a flooded paddock, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that the sheep were saved. They had to be conveyed in a boat about a mile on to dry land; only two were lost. Another grazier, Mr. Doyle, of Woodsome Lees, was less fortunate, and lost 60 rams. At Cobram, which is a little higher up the Murray from Tocumwal, the gauge at the bridge this morning registered 21ft, but the water later in the day was slowly receding. Some exciting rescues were effected by boat, one man being seven hours up a tree awaiting assistance. Although the water was falling slowly to-day, it is not expected to do so for long, as a heavy body of water is coming from the Upper Murray. At Tallangatta, which is on the Mitta Mitta, as the result of a heavy thunderstorm last night, 150 points were registered. This morning Tallangatta Creek overflowed, cutting off the suburb of Toorak from the rest of the town.

Reports from the outlying districts round Numurkah indicate that the greatest flood in the history of the district is coming down the Broken River, which flows into the Goulburn, near Shepparton. The Murray at Koonoomoo has broken its banks, and there is every danger of the country north of Strathmerton being flooded. At Tallygaroopna the water is within a mile of the township, near which levees have been constructed to prevent a recurrence of the experience of last September, when every building was under water. The railway line between the Congupna-road and Tallygaroopna has been washed out in several places, and communication by rail is entirely suspended. The railway between Shepparton and Numurkah, on the Goulburn Valley line, being three feet under water, all services beyond Shepparton were suspended to-day. Although a slight washaway had occurred at Mooroopna, the first trains from Melbourne this morning passed safely through the damaged portion. Further heavy rains have fallen in this district. The Whitefield line remains closed to traffic, and the Ovens River at Wangaratta has risen considerably.

The chairman of the Water Commission, Mr. W. Cattanach, stated to-night that, according to the latest advices received by the Commission from the Goulburn centre, the river at Shepparton must have reached between 35 feet and 36 feet. The Goulburn levees appeared to have broken in at least two places, at Loch Garry and Coomboona, and probably other breaks will be discovered. The last accounts from Shepparton seemed to show, however, that the river was falling slightly. From information supplied by departmental officers, the Commission was of opinion that the river must rise to an exceedingly high level at Echuca. The flood coming down the Goulburn and the flood coming down the Murray were about equally distant from that point, and would probably meet. Although the rivers had risen quickly the danger of serious flooding seemed to be confined on this occasion to the Murray, Ovens, Broken, and Goulburn rivers, and a number of their tributaries.

ALBURY, Monday.

There has been very heavy rain during the past week, over four inches being measured here, including 135 points this morning. As the Murray was at flood level before the rain yesterday, it is anticipated that the stream will reach exceptional height, especially in the lower reaches, where it will receive the combined flood waters from Victoria and New South Wales. This morning the river was 13 feet 3 inches above summer level, and rising, this being only two feet below danger point. Much more water is to come from the Upper Murray, where the creeks are in flood. Wodonga flats are covered to-day, also the gardens on this side of the river.

In the Kiewa Valley stockowners had many exciting experiences and narrow escapes in rescuing cattle from the flats, and some cattle have been drowned. Some Kiewa settlers had to leave their homes, the flood waters having entered them. A young man was washed from a sulky while endeavouring to cross the swollen waters. He was hung up on a snag for some time, but was eventually rescued in a boat.

At Mulwala, on the Murray, the river rose 15 feet on Friday night, this being the greatest rise ever recorded in one night. The river at Mulwala is now several feet higher than during the big floods last year. To-night the river is at 13 feet 10 inches, and is still rising.

OUR SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Statistics of the number of school teachers employed by the Department of Public Instruction were issued yesterday by the Minister, Mr. James. Referring to the amount of salaries paid annually to these teachers—a total of £1,241,154—Mr. James said that, huge as this expenditure was, the amount would have to be materially increased as soon as money was available. "I have frequently expressed the opinion," said the Minister, "that the teachers in the lower grades did not receive nearly enough, and that as soon as the financial stringency was relaxed I proposed to ask my colleagues to raise the minimum salary."

Excluding students at the Sydney Teachers' College, there were at 31st December last year 7307 teachers employed by the Education Department. For the first time in its history women teachers predominated, the respective numbers being—men 3589, women 3718. When the students in training are added the army of teachers approaches 8000, the exact number being 3711 men and 4119 women; total, 7830.

Of the teachers employed at present 2917 are in charge of schools. Of these 2405 are men and 512 women. On the other hand, the number of women assistants is greatly in excess of the number of men assistants, the figures being 2377 women and 913 men. In addition to principal teachers, mistresses of departments, and assistant teachers, there are 115 sewing mistresses, 59 cookery teachers, 147 first-year ex-students, 119 second-year ex-students, and 73 junior assistants. The foregoing are employed entirely in primary work, while 264 men and 148 women are engaged as high school teachers, making a total of 7307 teachers actually employed by the department.

The figures include 607 teachers on active service and 23 engaged on local military duty.

The department also subsidises teachers in isolated places where an attendance of 10 cannot be maintained.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL REFERENDUM.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The figures in connection with the referendum for the abolition of the Legislative Council are:—Against, 173,324; for, 110,800.

ALLEGED FATAL ASSAULT.

About 11 o'clock last night Ethel Lever, 28, whose address is at present unknown, is alleged to have been assaulted in Union-street, near Edward-street, Pyrmont. The Civil Ambulance conveyed her to Sydney Hospital, where Dr. Vickerton pronounced life extinct. Subsequently the Pyrmont police arrested a man in connection with the affair.

CHARGE OF STEALING FURNITURE

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

Further evidence was heard to-day in the cases in which John Giles, 29, storeman, was charged with stealing furniture to the value of £354, and Frank Hynes, William James Mason, Malcolm Lochrin, Robert Hodgins, Andrew Alfred Hodgins, William Joseph O'Neill, Herbert Peter Hestelow, and Francis James Walsh were charged with receiving and having in their possession stolen furniture to the value of £354, the property of James Mackie and Co.

All the accused reserved their defence, and the magistrate, Mr. Butler, S.M., committed them for trial at the Quarter Sessions to be held on August 7. In the case of Giles bail was fixed at £100, and one surety of £100, and in the cases of the other accused the sum was £50, and one surety of £50.

P.L.L. CONFERENCE.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS AND EXECUTIVE.

When the annual conference of the Political Labour League of New South Wales was resumed in the Trades Hall last night the president (Mr. J. W. Doyle, M.L.A.) read a communication which had been received from the State recruiting committee asking the conference to carry a resolution expressing its willingness to assist in the State recruiting campaign.

Mr. A. E. O'Brien (Musicians' Union) moved that Captain Coates, the secretary of the State recruiting committee, who, he said was a good Labour man, be invited to address the conference.

The motion lapsed for want of a seconder.

The letter was received.

The conference then proceeded to discuss clauses three, four, five, six, and seven of the sectional committee's peace proposals, which read:—

3. That, prior to the disbandment of the combatant armies, they shall be utilised under international control for the restoration of the devastated territories at the expense of the invaders.

4. That where an amicable arrangement cannot be reached by the Peace Conference in regard to captured colonies and dependencies, such territories shall be placed provisionally under international control.

5. That the freedom of the seas be secured on the lines laid down by President Wilson of America in his speech at Washington in May, 1916, where he advocated "A universal association of the nations to maintain the inviolate security of the highway of the seas for the common and unhindered use of all the nations of the world."

6. The abolition of trading in armaments, and the prohibition of the private manufacturer thereof.

7. The abolition of conscription in all countries simultaneously.

Mr. A. E. O'Brien moved as an amendment,—"That having expressed our detestation of the horrors of war, and our opinions and desire for an early peace, and further the prevention of future conflicts, we herewith express our complete loyalty and desire to win the war, and call upon all citizens, in the sacred name of labour, humanity, and justice, to do all that lies in our power by voluntary service to bring this sanguinary conflict to an early, honourable, and successful conclusion."

He said that when the Labour movement had elected men like Messrs. Considine and Brookfield—— (Uproar.)

Mr. O'Brien explained that he did not wish to be personal, but he objected to the sentiments expressed by Messrs. Brookfield and Considine. He did not subscribe to them. They had their relations, and many of them their sons, at the front, and they had to be supported.

Mr. Brookfield denied that he had said he would not fight in any war. (Applause.).

The president ruled Mr. O'Brien's amendment out of order.

A delegate moved that in clause 3 the word "voluntarily" be inserted before "utilised."

Mr. A. C. Willis contended that the payment of an indemnity benefited the people that paid it, as it would be received in goods and not in money. The receipt of an indemnity was an evil to the workers instead of a benefit.

Mr. O'Sullivan (Camperdown) said that as a means of preventing war the proposals put forward by the conference were "not worth a snap of the fingers." If they wished the people to hate war they should begin in the schools.

The amendment to insert the word "voluntary" was carried on the voices.

OFFICE-BEARERS.

The returning officer (Mr. Johnson) announced that the following office-bearers had been elected:—President, Mr. W. H. Lambert 150 votes (elected); Mr. A. E. O'Brien, 52 votes. Vice-presidents: Messrs. A. C. Willis 162, and S. A. Rosa 125 (elected); and Messrs. A. Rae 82, S. Toombs 35. General secretary, P. C. Evans, 183 (elected); T. X. Slade, 20. Federal executive, Messrs. A. C. Willis, 194, and J. M. Power, 125 (elected); G. M. Burns, 83. Delegates to Federal Conference, Messrs. Willis 181, and P. Adler 130, Miss M. Matthews 127, Messrs. G. Sutherland 110, J. J. Graves 105, and A. Rae 98, all elected.

EXECUTIVE.

Messrs. R. D. Bramston, G. C. Bodkin, W. Morby, C. B. Trefle, Con. Hogan, J. Farrell, J. Bailey, P. Adler, R. T. D. O'Halloran, J. M. Cullinane, A. E. Dengate, A. Rutherford, Miss May Matthews, Messrs. J. Andrews, G. M'Carthy, L. J. O'Hara, J. Howie, W. Peat, W. T. Sturgess, J. M. Power, Mrs. A. M. Toohey, Messrs. J. J. Graves, C. Last, J. Guest, P. Humphries, G. M'Neil, G. Sutherland, J. Millard, T. D. Gearing, and A. Rae.

Mr. A. E. O'Brien inquired whether he would be allowed to ask the delegates who had been elected whether they had handed in their undated resignations. (Uproar.) If there was nothing in the allegation, he said, there could be no harm in denying it. It was mandatory on members that they should vote for one another, and must show their ballot papers to one another.

Voices: It is not true.

Mr. O'Brien said it was true. He had seen Mr. Lambert and Mr. Rosa voting together.

A delegate: Don't cry.

Mr. O'Brien: "I'm not crying. Only cure like you cry." The way in which the election had been conducted was a disgrace to the Labour movement. The secret junta was a danger to the Labour movement, and it should be turned down.

Mr. J. P. Lynch (ex-M.L.A. for Ashburnham) said there had not been a secret junta.

Mrs. Melville: It is true, and I challenge you to deny it.

Mr. Guihen moved that the returning officer's report be referred to a special committee to consist of two representatives appointed by the section which had been castrgated, two from the other side, and one to be selected by these four as an independent chairman, to investigate the allegations. He said that one member of the old executive who had handed in his undated resignation had been called upon to resign. If the executive had been elected as had been alleged, conference should not endorse it.

Mr. Rosa: Is there anything in the constitution to prevent open voting?

The President: No.

Mr. Rosa: Then no wrong can have been done.

Mr. Guihen said that to-day the Labour movement was an important body. "It is out of office to-day because it has failed to face the truth. The men and women of the rank and file are looking to you to rescue the movement from the position it is in to-day," he added.

Mrs. Dwyer, who seconded the motion, said that the members of the junta entered the booth in twos and threes to vote. She said that she had been left off the industrial ticket because she had refused to sign an undated resignation.

Mr. Morby (Furniture Trades) said that Mrs. Dwyer was not left off the industrial ticket because she had not signed an undated resignation. She was left off because it was not known whether she desired to stand.

Mr. Guihen's motion was defeated by an overwhelming majority on the voices, and the report of the returning officer was adopted.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

In vacating the chair for the new president, Mr. Lambert, the retiring president, Mr. Doyle, M.L.A., said he had conscientiously done his duty during a period of great stress and difficulty. He hoped he had made no enemies in the movement. Any mistakes he had made were due to inexperience, inability, or incapacity, but he felt that he had had a wonderful career as the president of the P.L.L. In season and out of season he had been required to be on deck. He repudiated the suggestion that he or any other member of the executive had served their own ends to get into Parliament. He could assure them that it was no sinecure to be in Parliament. (Laughter.) He believed he would be worse off when he left Parliament than when he entered it. (Laughter.) The movement was going through a certain process of evolution, and a lot would depend on the personnel of the new executive.

Mr. Lambert, on taking the chair, said the trust of the delegates would not be misplaced. Some of their opponents said the movement was dead, but that conference was the most effective reply to that statement.

A vote of thanks to the retiring president was adopted on the motion of Mr. Adler, seconded by Miss Matthews.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.

The debate on the concluding sections of the peace proposals was continued. They were as follow:—

The control of foreign relations under a democratic system, based upon publicity, in lieu of the present methods of secret diplomacy.

That the existing machinery for international arbitration be expanded to embrace a Concert of Europe, ultimately merging into a world-wide Parliament, as advocated by President Wilson, in a recent message to the American Congress.

The sections were adopted on the voices.

It was further resolved to take steps to disseminate the views adopted by the conference on the war, and peace proposals throughout Australia.

On the motion of Mr. Considine, the standing orders were suspended to enable the conference to discuss a resolution calling for a Royal Commission to inquire into the cases of the twelve members of the I.W.W. now in prison. He said he had no personal connection with the I.W.W., but he did not believe those twelve men had a fair chance. The public mind has been inflamed against them. They should do their utmost to see justice done to them. No jury in the world, he said, would convict on the evidence adduced, unless their minds were inflamed, and no Government would be able to refuse the agitation, which the movement could inspire.

Mr. Power (Executive) said that, although the Labour movement had suffered from being linked to the I.W.W. cause, by its opponents, they could do nothing less than insist upon a fair trial for these, or any other men. A refusal to appoint a Royal Commission would be a black blot on the political history of Australia.

The debate was adjourned till to-night.

P.L.L. SECRETARY'S STATEMENT.

"Mr. Joseph Cook, Minister for the Navy," said the general secretary of the P.L.L. (Mr. P. C. Evans) last night, "still defies all power of analysis. In his speech at Ashfield on Sunday, criticising the peace proposals now being brought forward and discussed at the Labour conference, Mr. Cook deprecated the want of understanding displayed by the delegates, and in attempting to show the alleged impossible chasm, stressed an alleged utterance of the German Emperor, in which he is reported to have referred to the 'odious British nation.' Mr. Cook completely overlooked the cabled news of a few days back, wherein we were gravely informed that at a great gathering of the leading men of Britain, the guests 'after' they had consumed the dinner provided, discovered that the plates upon which it had been served bore the print of having been made in Germany, and every plate, according to the cable, was deliberately and with great indignation, broken on the spot. Beside such utterances of Mr. Cook, and such cabled reports of the deeds of the 'great' in Britain, the debate at the Labour conference is an oasis in an Egyptian desert."

COALMINING INDUSTRY AWARDS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Three orders made by Judge Edmunds in his capacity as President of the Coal Board, appointed by the Prime Minister under the War Precautions Act to deal with disputes in the coal mining industry, were gazetted to-day. The first provides that in all contracts for the sale of pigiron or steel made by the Broken Hill Proprietary Co. and Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins prior to January 1, the selling price of pigiron might be increased by 11/ per ton, and of steel by 12/ a ton. The order declares that the companies shall be entitled to recover this increase upon all pigiron and steel delivered by them in fulfilment of these contracts on or after February 7. It is provided that the books of the companies must be open to examination by an accountant appointed by the Prime Minister.

The next order relates to the dispute between the Coal and Shale Employees' Federation of Australia, Coke Workers, and the Broken Hill Proprietary Co. Judge Edmunds made the following order:—The existing conditions, as to hours of the company's steel works at Newcastle, shall continue undisturbed, provided that the parties have liberty to apply for an alteration. The existing rates of wages of all adult employees engaged in the coke works of the company who are members of the Federation, shall be increased 26 per cent., and of the employees engaged in the company's by-product plants, members of the federation, shall be increased 16 per cent. The minimum rates of wages of youths engaged on shift work shall be: 14 to 16 years of age, 5/6; 16 to 17 years of age, 6/6; 17 to 18 years of age, 7/9; 18 to 20 years of age, 9/2; at 20 years of age the above adult rates, provided that where a youth does work of the same kind, and equal in amount to that of an ordinary adult, such youth shall be paid adult rates. The rates shall operate hourly, that all times worked before and after the hours as fixed from commencing and ceasing work shall be paid for at the rate of time and a half. In the event of the shortening of hands, preference of employment shall be given to married men. Preference of employment shall be continued for three years, or given to members of the federation, other things being equal. The order shall take effect on and from February 7, 1917, and shall be for the duration of the present war.

The third order was in regard to a dispute between the federation and G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd. Judge Edmunds ordered that the week's work shall consist of 48 hours, provided that the parties have liberty to apply for an alteration; that the rate of pay shall be those prescribed for adult employees (coke workers), iron and ship building trades group, published August 18, 1915, as varied by the order in the Industrial Court of New South Wales, published March 17, 1916, increased by 20 per cent.; that the minimum rates for youths per day of eight hours shall be as follows: From 15 to 16 years, 5/3; from 16 to 17 years, 6/3; from 17 to 18 years, 7/5; from 18 to 20 years, 8/8; at 20 years of age the above adult rates, provided that where a youth does work of the same kind equal in amount to that of an ordinary adult employee, such youth shall be paid adult wages. For night shift, 5 p.m. to 2.30 a.m., the above rates shall be increased 6d per shift of eight hours. Double ordinary rates shall be paid for all time worked on Saturdays and on Saturday after 5 p.m., and the following holidays: New Year's Day, Anniversary Day, Eskbank Ironworkers' Picnic Day, Good Friday, Easter Saturday, Easter Monday, Eight-hour Day (local), Christmas Day, and Boxing Day.

THE CHERNIAVSKYS.

A world of spring-like, youthful freshness, and exhilaration pervaded the concert given at the Town Hall last night by Leo, Jan, and Mischel Cherniavsky, and an unexpectedly large audience responded to it with impulsive enthusiasm. When these artists were here in 1914 with Maud Allan's ballet-entertainment, the violinist alone played up to classic form. The younger brother's style deteriorated under their theatrical surroundings. Three years is a long time in the career of quite young artists, however, and the pianist, at any rate, has returned as a brilliantly accomplished virtuoso, whilst the 'cellist, immensely clever executant as he is, still occasionally indulges in the tricky manner termed in school circles "showing off." Leo, the violinist, has matured into a fine artist, and the Cherniavsky concerts, singularly bright as they are, should draw crowded houses.

The brothers opened with the famous "D Minor Trio" by Anton Arensky, first introduced in this city by Adelina De Lara, Henri Staell, and the late Gerard Vollmar, in 1900, and repeated since at long intervals of years. The violinist steadied the other players, and an effective interpretation of the beautiful music was afforded. The work is one in which the sad wind seems to moan across the snow fields as the voice of some melancholy melodic fragment reaches the ear, or rises to a stormy climax wherever tremendous passages for the piano assert the predominance of that instrument. The three artists united at the end of the evening in Russian themes by Glinka, Arensky, and Dvorak, arranged by themselves in trio form. The Slav dance by the Bohemian composer especially excited enthusiasm, leading to the "Moments Musicales" of Schubert: after which the three thundered forth the Russian, French, and British National Anthems, the entire audience standing throughout.

Mr. Leo Cherniavsky played "Violin Concerto in F Minor," by Ernst, the orchestral part to which was firmly handled by Alex. Czerny, a pianist of talent. The concerto is not often heard, owing to its appalling difficulties, and history relates that the composer himself was not always perfect in it. Last night's player showed an absolute mastery of the executive requirements, which involve peculiar "zig-zag" passages in octaves and chords, rapidly given, and winding up with double-stop chromatics of the most fatiguing nature. This artist showed a sympathetic quality in the principal theme, and in other ways justified the applause, when a double encore led to the addition of two muted pieces, a waltz by Kreissler, and a Rondino by Beethoven.

Mr. Jan Cherniavsky made quite a sensation in a familiar Chopin group, rendering the "D flat Nocturne" with distinguished musical expression, realising the title of "The Blacksmith" in "Prelude No. 24" by the energy of his hammer strokes, and revealing temperament and a tremendous technique in the "Scherzo in B flat Minor." The audience was in raptures, and a waltz and another prelude met the situation thus created.

Mr. Mischel Cherniavsky is a 'cellist with a very large and pleasing tone, in such pieces as Cesar Cui's "Cantabile," and his clear harmonies in the "repeat" were also admired. He is also a brilliant and "tricky" executant, as was shown in Popper's "Tarantella," and in the "Gavotte," which was added as encore.

PERTH TRAMWAYS AND WATER SUPPLY.

PERTH, Monday.

Mr. J. W. Connolly, Hon. Minister, announced at a Chamber of Manufactures gathering that bills had been drafted for the handing over of the water supply and city tramways to the local authorities of the metropolis.

PILLAGING ON THE WHARFS.

The Attorney-General, Mr. D. R. Hall, has arranged to receive a deputation of representatives of the Australasian Steamship Owners' Federation to-morrow afternoon, at 2.30, in connection with the prevalence of thefts of goods from wharfs, and the punishment which has been meted out to offenders.

AN IRISH HERO.

MAJOR WILLIAM HOEY KEARNEY REDMOND, M.P.,

Whose death while on active service has just been reported.

Coming to Australia in 1883 with his brother, Mr. John E. Redmond, M.P., who then represented New Ross in the House of Commons, and who has been for many years the leader of the Irish National party, the late Major William Hoey Kearney Redmond, M.P., whose death while on active service was chronicled in yesterday's "Herald," was well known in this part of the world. Unlike his brother, who did not return to Australia after the Home Rule campaign of 1883-84, the ardent Irish Nationalist who has given his life in defence of the Empire was a visitor five or six times.

When last in Sydney, the year before the outbreak of war the late Major Redmond spoke at a Home Rule meeting in the Town Hall, and was entertained on the eve of his departure at a representative public luncheon in the pavilion at Clifton Gardens, with Dr. Charles W. MacCarthy in the chair. Responding to the toast of his health at the farewell luncheon, the departing guest pleaded earnestly for the settlement of religious differences as a stepping-stone to the satisfying solution of the Irish problem. The point he said he wished to drive in and hammer home was that "Home Rule did not mean Rome Rule." The speaker declared that self-government would not be welcomed by Irish Roman Catholics unless it secured a full measure of religious freedom to every one in the Emerald Isle.

Mr. W. H. K. Redmond and Mr. John E. Redmond spoke at the Sydney 1883 celebration of St. Patrick's Day, which was held at Sir Joseph Banks Grounds, Botany, and also at the evening banquet, which was held in what was then known as Needs' Rooms, Liverpool-street. Both brothers attended the Requiem Mass in St. Mary's Cathedral for Archbishop Vaughan, who died in August, 1883. The late Mr. Redmond was elected to the Imperial Parliament as member for Wexford, Ireland, while touring Australia as a Home Rule advocate in 1883. He sat as member for Fermanagh from 1885 till 1892, and since that year had represented East Clare—a position he held at the time of his death.

In 1886 Mr. Redmond married in England the eldest daughter of Mr. James Dalton, of Orange, New South Wales. Mrs. Redmond, who survives her soldier-husband, has no children. Born in 1861, the late Mr. Redmond, like his elder brother, was a barrister-at-law, but did not practise his profession. His nephew, Mr. William Archer Redmond, member for East Tyrone, who was called to the Bar in 1910, is now on active service.

Without the oratorical graces of his more eminent brother, the soldier-politician was a ready and forceful speaker, and one who always commanded attention when Irish matters of importance were under discussion in the House of Commons.

FRANCE'S DAY.

The committee of the France's Day movement, constituted at a meeting of citizens in the Town Hall on May 14, has issued an appeal setting out the objects of the collection which is to take place on July 13, finishing up with national celebrations on the following day. The appeal tells of France's heroic work during the first year of war—work which enabled Britain to prepare herself and strengthen her then small army—and makes eloquent reference to the tremendous part that France has played in the struggle right through, and to her immense loss of both life and property in the fight for national honour.

Contributions have already commenced, and amounted to £1700 last week, when the Woolbuyers' Association voted £5000, making the total already in hand £6700. The Red Cross branches have been instructed by the Red Cross executive to give all the assistance possible, and co-operation with the local government authorities is suggested. The campaign for funds has been sanctioned by the State War Council, which means that all the popular methods, such as indoor and outdoor entertainments, raffles, sales of goods, and the general gathering of subscriptions by authorised collectors may be undertaken. The only restriction imposed is that there shall not be general street collections with the usual collecting boxes. This part of the work has been modified down to permission to establish a limited number of definite street collecting centres, under the control of representative committees.

The amount gained will be handed to the French-Australian League of Help.

Mrs. Leonard Dodds will give a matinee musicale in aid of the France's Day fund, at her residence, Alnwick House, St. Mark's-road, Darling Point, on Friday, July 6, at 3 p.m. The programme, which has been arranged by Mr. Roland Foster, of the State Conservatorium of Music, will include vocal solos and duets by Miss Rose Alba (the new lyric soprano), Miss Jessica Cummins (mezzo), Miss Marjorie Pechy (contralto), Mr. Roland Foster, and others; and instrumental solos by leading artists.

A meeting of those engaged in the liquor trade, who are especially interested on account of their association with the French vineyards, is to be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday afternoon to consider what steps shall be taken to assist the fund.

The honorary treasurers acknowledge the following subscriptions to the France's Day Fund:—Mlle. de Laurel, third instalment of France Day, Goulburn, £300; Mr. G. H. Hebden, £100; Miss Dangar, £100; Messrs. Flood and Co., £100; ex officers of the Commercial Banking Co., £100; Royal Agricultural Society of New South Wales, £100; Mr. E. W. FEDERAL LAND TAX.

Wednesday next, June 13, is the last day for payment of Federal land tax, assessed for the year 1916-17, without incurring a penalty of 10 per cent. of the amount of tax as assessed.

STAMP DUTY.

Last week £5393 was paid in stamp duty in connection with probates and letters of administration. The chief amount—£2879—was paid by the trustees of the late Mr. Christopher Bennett, a Sydney newspaper proprietor, whose estate was of the net value of £35,992.

HEAVY RAINS.

Further splendid rains have fallen almost generally throughout New South Wales, and, following so soon after the preceding falls, and being accompanied by exceptional mildness of temperature, should prove highly beneficial to agriculture.

The rainstorm attained its greatest productivity in the southern districts of the State, and registrations of over 100 points were numerous in the Riverina, on the southern tablelands, and along the South Coast. In the first-mentioned division, 177 points fell at Henty, 165 points at Deniliquin, 160 points at Howlong, 146 points at Jerilderie, 142 points at Conargo, and 140 points at Culcairn.

In the other districts the largest amounts were 190 points at Kiandra (southern tablelands), 180 points at Pambula (South Coast), 173 points at Albury (south-west slopes), and 102 points at Lawson (central tablelands).

Sydney's share of the rain was 42 points.

Further general rains have fallen in Victoria also, the heaviest downpours being in the north-east, at Albury, and the Murray River was yesterday morning within 11 inches of danger point.

The rainfall was due to condensation from the moist north-easterly winds forming the rear circulation of an anti-cyclone over the eastern districts of New South Wales, and fronting an advancing Antarctic depression.

Storm influence has declined considerably, and immediate prospects favour further showers in only the southern districts and along the western slopes of the mountains.

In Sydney the weather yesterday was fine.

HERRICAN.—Further heavy rain fell throughout the district on Sunday, when 132 points were recorded, making a total of 358 points during the last five days.

CULCAIRN.—A heavy storm occurred here on Sunday night, and 140 points of rain were were registered, making over 3 inches for June. The Billabong is rising.

FINLEY.—Further rains have fallen from early on Sunday morning the gauge at the post-office showing 150 points, making 385 for the month.

URANA.—There was a general rain here, and 118 points were recorded. This will secure a good lambing, and destroy the mice, which were eating the crops wholesale, before and after sprouting.

WAGGA.—The rains have proved most beneficial. The land received a good soaking, enabling ploughing and drilling to proceed rapidly. A considerable area of early-sown crops is showing well above the ground, and the fears that mice may have destroyed much grain have not been realised.

EXPORT OF MILL OFFAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Those who control the stocks of the above are anxious to get permission from the authorities to export same, by which I presume they have an over-plus and are anxious to unload. If this is so, perhaps the would-be exporters will tell your readers the cause of the recent rise of 10s per ton on bran, and the reason it is so difficult to procure even at present prices. Dairying, with the present high prices of stock, and stall-feeding them through the winter, is not profitable, and it behoves those in authority to see that the local consumers are supplied before export is tolerated. I feel sure that were a census taken of the supply and demand of this commodity the demand would be found the greater.

I am, etc.,

W. L. HOWARTH.

Mittagong, June 11.

ESTATE AGENT MISSING.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

An estate agent who has had a business for some years in Newcastle is reported to be missing. He went aboard the Newcastle and Hunter River Company's steamer Hunter on Saturday night and was shown to his berth. When the vessel reached Sydney he was missing, but a suitcase was found in the cabin. The police are making inquiries.

BUTTER EXPORT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

There is a probability that the export of butter this season will be stopped. The Imperial authorities class butter as a luxury and meat as a necessity.

MINING.

BARRIERS WEAKER.

ADVANCE IN C.S.A.

An average Monday's business was negotiated in mining scrip on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and all sections were accorded moderate attention. Copper propositions were quoted on a firm basis. Late rates were forthcoming for Hampdens. C.S.A.'s advanced sharply to 31/ cash, with 6 weeks booking at a further increase of /6. The fortnightly report from the mine revealed promising finds of ore, and good work done by the furnaces.

Broken Hill concerns were still inclined to weaken, and further decreases were registered for some stocks. The weakness in some Barriers was attributed to a notification given to those companies whose products are treated by the associated smelters, that it was essential that the weekly tonnage should be reduced. The reduction was slight, and was only anticipated to be temporary. No insuperable difficulty in securing overseas freight for the output of lead was apprehended, particularly as the price of lead in U.S.A. is £51 per ton. British sagged to 29/7, and Junction Norths closed weaker at 10/3. Norths and "Hills" also kept low.

Westonias were a shade lower. Deeps fell to 8/10, and Centrals eased to 19/4½. Clarks, a Queensland gold enterprise, provided exchange at around 2/3. Tin stocks were buoyant with the exception of Ratruts, which closed weaker at 16/9. Kampong put on /3 to 39/6, and Larut moved up /6 to 39/.

NOTES.

The weekly output of the Tongkah Harbour Tin Dredging Co. was 21 tons. No. 3 dredge was reported as having stopped for repairs on June 6.

Our Charters Towers correspondent states that the Kalamadau Gold Mining Co. crushed 1054 tons of ore, and treated 800 tons by cyanide, for gold of an approximate value of £1673.

The first official yield of the Bendigo Amalgamated Gold Fields was 318oz, which was recovered in a crushing of 3431 tons of ore, the above amount including the yields of tributors.

At the Central Mine, Broken Hill, during the week ended June 2, the Sulphide Corporation mill treated 4182 tons of ore, producing 724 tons of concentrates, assaying silver 38.7oz, lead 62.5 per cent., and zinc 9.3 per cent. The Cockle Creek works during the same period produced 420 tons of bullion, containing 577oz gold and 36,470oz of silver.

The Hawkin's Hill Central Gold Mining Co., N.L., was added to the official list of the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday. The authorised capital of the company is £37,500, which is divided into 250,000 shares of 3/ each. The subscribed capital comprises 200,000 fully paid-up shares and 50,000 contributing shares paid to 1/6.

The Vegetable Creek Tin Mining Co. produced 3½ tons of tin oxide during the week ended June 7, as against 3¼ tons for the preceding week. The boring plant has completed operations at 2029 hole, and from 310ft to 312ft a trace of tin was present, but not waterworn to the same extent as the tin in the main channel. The plant was moved and commenced a hole 50ft NW of the main shaft.

The C.S.A. furnace was in blast for 14 days during the fortnight ended June 6, and smelted 1364 tons of ore, producing 54.1 tons of copper in first matte, and in addition concentrated 268.05 tons of first matte, producing 129.03 tons of shipping matte, containing 60.12 tons of copper. During the period, 701 tons of ore were raised from the mine. Ore worth 30.4 per cent. copper was struck 14ft above No. 3 level in the south drive, but it appears to have only been a bunch, and the face is now in 8 per cent. copper. The east crosscut 14ft above the same level advanced 8ft in copper, worth from 8.1 to 18.8 per cent. copper.

MOUNT HOPE, LTD.

The monthly report of Mount Hope, Ltd., for the four weeks ended May 20, states that the concentrating mill worked one shift and crushed 476 tons of ore for 43.8 tons of concentrates, containing 11.32 tons of copper. The leaching vats produced 7.46 tons of copper in precipitate. Trouble was experienced with defective roll shells, thus limiting the crushing output; but operations were continued pending the arrival of new shells. The old main air lift for returning dump solution to the leaching plant was dismantled and rebuilt on a larger scale, and the above interfered with leaching recoveries for 10 days. The second shift was ready to start in a few days. Underground development was as follows:—100ft level: North stope on level extended 30ft into new ground to 20ft wide; assay 8 per cent. No walls found. South stope extended 12ft in new ground, face 15ft wide, averages 5.1 per cent.; no walls. 270ft level: South stope advanced 10ft; face 7ft wide; assay 6.3 per cent.; no walls.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure, which, on Saturday was centred just off our central coast, has moved across the Tasman to New Zealand, where it has gained considerably in barometric values, the highest reading being 30.48 inches at the Bluff. This sudden increase in pressure, in conjunction with the southern surge of the tropical disturbance, to the north of Norfolk Island, accounts for the moist and squally northerly winds and to some extent for the general rains.

The Antarctic disturbance has not made much advance eastward, and during the 48 hours ended at 9 a.m., yesterday has lost a good deal of energy. To the rear of this disturbance is an energetic high pressure, which is causing south-westerly gales in the extreme SW corner of the continent. Further showers may be expected along the slopes and southern districts, and a cold spell in two or three days.

Ocean Forecast.—South-west gales in Western Bight, moving to Straits by middle of week. Cyclone off North Island of New Zealand.

AMERICA AND THE WAR.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Arranged privately to commemorate the entry into the war of the United States, a dinner given at Menzies' Hotel last night, by what was described as "The American Colony in Australia," to the Governor-General, developed into a celebration of the "reconciliation" between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race—America and Great Britain. The gathering was representative of official Australia and of official America, and of the great business institutions of both countries.

The chairman, Mr. Cornforth, said that a cable message had been sent to Washington, advising the authorities that their excellencies the Governor-General and the Governor of Victoria had intimated their intention to be present at the dinner, and through the Secretary of State, the President, Mr. Woodrow Wilson, had sent the following message:—"I gladly associate myself with our citizens in this manifestation of international goodwill."

The Governor-General said:—"As his Majesty's representative, I would respond most cordially to the sentiments of good fellowship and good feeling expressed by the President in his message addressed to so distinguished a gathering of the American colony in Australia—a President who now leads a united people into the great world war for liberty, right, and justice. Given a situation, such as at present exists, when civilisation is at stake, a people resolved in righteousness can no longer remain outside the ring, and when the United States is resolved to be no longer in doubt, when ten millions liable for military service register in 24 hours—(great cheers)—that is the great answer of the United States to the German claim to exercise unrestricted piracy and unbridled dominion. It reveals the American mind towards German aims and German brutality."

LANCE-CORPORAL KENNY, V.C.

An address emphasising the bravery of their young hero companion, Lance-corporal T. J. Bede Kenny, V.C., was delivered at noon yesterday to about 300 boys attending the Christian Brothers' College, Waverley, by the Mayor of Waverley, Alderman H. Roger. Those present included Nurse Kenny, mother of the young hero, Miss B. Kenny, sister, the Rev. Father Piper, O.F.M., Sergt.-Major Johnson, and the Rev. Br. O'Shea (Inspector).

The Principal, in introducing the Mayor, said that the whole State had reason to be proud of the brave deeds of their college companion, but the district of Waverley and the college in which he spent nine or ten years of his life had still greater reason to rejoice at such an achievement as that of winning the greatest of all military honours—the V.C. The college rejoiced to feel that so many of its best and bravest ex-students were serving their country's cause, and serving it in such a distinguished way, as was shown by the fact that at least ten had been promoted on the field of battle for bravery and ability.

The Mayor delivered an eloquent and patriotic address to the boys. He congratulated the college on turning out such a good, brave, and patriotic man, and said that as civic head of the district he felt proud that it had produced a man of such fearlessness and patriotism.

At the request of the Mayor the boys were granted a half-holiday to mark the occasion.

FINANCIAL.

THE RAILWAYS OF AUSTRALIA.

The mileage of railways in Australia is gradually increasing more slowly during these war years than in previous years. For the year ended June 30, 1916, Government lines, open for traffic, increased by 676 miles, and private lines decreased by 33 miles compared with an increase in the previous year of Government lines 1735 miles, and private lines 16 miles. The combined net earnings of the Government railways reached their highest point in 1913-14, when they were £12,000, but this was not the case of the individual States. South Australia reached its highest point in 1912-13, when its railway net earnings were £815,000; also Tasmania in the same year, when its earnings were £110,000. Queensland reached its highest point in 1914-15 with net earnings of £1,000,000, and New South Wales in 1915-16 with £3,245,000. But the true guide to the value of the railways is the net earnings per cent. to capital cost. Here there was a continuous fall in the combined percentage from 1910-11 to 1914-15, though last year there was a slight rise. Details are:—

NET EARNINGS PER CENT. TO CAPITAL COST.

	1910-11	1914-15	1915-16
Commonwealth	0.15	-0.60	-0.50
New South Wales	4.62	3.60	3.41
Victoria	4.07	1.79	2.92
Queensland	4.51	4.28	2.88
South Australia	5.40	1.79	2.44
Western Australia	5.22	3.30	3.37
Tasmania	1.53	2.10	2.07
Total	4.43	2.86	2.91

Train miles run declined last financial year by 706,000, due principally to a reduction of 10 per cent. in the Victorian figures.

LIFE ASSURANCE OF ENLISTED MEN.

A joint committee of life companies and insurance commissioners of the United States has drafted conditions of uniform war clauses to be inserted in policies. The clauses apply to enlisted men taking out new policies, or to men who take out policies now coming within these clauses if they enlist. The clauses are as follow:—

1. The military clause shall cover the entire period of military or naval service in time of war, if commenced within five years of the register date.
2. The clause shall call for "such extra premiums as may be fixed by the company."
3. The extra premium charge for the present shall be at the rate of not less than 37.50 dollars per annum per thousand of insurance.
4. In the event of death during service or within six months after termination thereof the liability of the company shall, unless all required extra premiums have been paid, be limited to an amount not exceeding the total premiums paid on the policy, exclusive of any extra premiums which may have been paid for military or naval service.
5. The clause shall require payment of the extra premium within 31 days after entering upon service, or, if already in service, along with the first premium on the policy.
6. A refund will be made of any extra premiums not required.

A war clause to be used as a rider or inserted in the policy itself, as the companies may see fit, was also unanimously agreed to. This war clause is as follows:—

"If within five years from the date of this policy the insured shall engage in military or naval service in time of war the liability of the company in event of the death of the insured while so engaged, or within six months thereafter, will be limited to the return of the premiums paid hereon, exclusive of any extra premium paid for military or naval service, less any indebtedness to the company hereon; unless before engaging in such service or within one month (of not less than 30 days), or at the time of paying the first premium due hereon, if the insured shall be then so engaged, the insured shall pay to the company at its home office in ——— such extra premium as may be required by the company, and in like manner shall pay annually thereafter to each anniversary of this policy, or within one month (of not less than 30 days), while the insured shall continue to be so engaged, such extra premium as may be required by the company. Within one year after the termination of the war the company will return such portion of the extra premiums as in its judgment will not be required to cover the extra hazard."

It will be seen that the extra premium proposed is 3¾ per cent., compared with 7½ per cent. charged by the only life office in Australia writing insurance to cover war risk—the A.M.P. Society.

INCOME TAXES.

"Wolves."—The writing off would be allowed as a deduction by the State Commissioner, but not by the Federal Commissioner.

MISCELLANEOUS QUERIES.

"Searchlight."—Neither a charwoman, a gardener, nor a nurse employed in the manner mentioned, would come under the Workmen's Compensation Act. "E.M.L."—The security of a post-dated cheque is less in this respect, that a promissory note implies consideration.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

General merchandise was in strong demand yesterday, and in no instance was any weakness in quotations apparent. On the contrary, all lines were well held at firm, if not at advanced, prices. Amongst hardware merchants, this feeling of strength was most marked. Fencing wire was regarded as exceptionally good property, and sales of No. 8 black were made at £36 a ton. No. 8 galvanised realised to £39/10/, and No. 10 galvanised to £42 a ton. Stocks of galvanised iron were very small, and although some holders were willing to accept orders from regular customers at £55 a ton, there were others who refused to sell under £70. Shelf lines were in demand at full rates. Writing on the subject of iron and steel, under date, New York, May 3, Messrs. John Dunn, Son, and Co., stated that prices continued to advance, pig-iron particularly being quoted at a very decided increase as compared with a month previously. Negotiations between the Government and the steel manufacturers as to prices and distribution of orders for the [illegible] had not reached a conclusion. For the present the Government requirements were restricted largely to ship plates and structural shapes, it being understood that the quantity under negotiation was about 300,000 tons, although 1,000,000 tons in all, for delivery within a few months, was talked about. The allied Governments were reported to be about to make some further heavy purchases in all lines, and no easing in the situation was in sight. It was nearly impossible to place orders for steel bars at any price. Iron bars could be had for reasonably prompt delivery, although deliveries were not so good as they were previously. Ship plates were quoted at 27/6 per 100lb. f.o.b. New York, but there were practically none to be had at any price. New tinplate mills were meeting with all kinds of difficulty in getting their machinery and other equipment, and all of the old mills were crowded to the limit with business.

Cornsacks were dearer. The Calcutta market was cabled as firmer, with shippers wanting 8/ c.i.f. for July, August, September, October shipments. Sydney merchants, however, were prepared to accept orders for season's shipments at 8/ slings, plus war insurance. Spot stocks were offered at 9/6 net to rails. Woolpacks ex store were worth 4/, but ex wharf requirements could have been filled at 3/11 net. Season's deliveries were quoted at 3/10½ net delivered, plus war insurance. Branbags commanded 8/1 net.

The oil market was very firm at last week's high levels. Turpentine was quoted by most houses at 4/10 and 4/11 a gallon, and imported linseed oil was not to be had under 7/4 and 7/6. Small lots of Australian oil, in cases, was offered at 6/1 and 6/3, but parcels were to be had at 5/11 and 6/1. Reports from Melbourne showed that the linseed oil fiasco had been brought to a close. During the last few weeks a ridiculous trade rivalry, which had been brewing for some months, developed into a sacrifice of prices to a level well below actual cost. Conferences were held last week, however, and, according to the "Argus," the selling agents for the Australian mills were able to bring distributors into agreement. Prices were approved by leading members of the trade which would leave a moderate profit. Rates quoted for imported oils were only equal to the bare cost of importing on current London quotations, and might therefore be again advanced in the near future. In Melbourne on Saturday leading brands of imported oils commanded 7/4 and 7/7, and Australian oil in cases 6/6 and 6/8 a gallon.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

A steady trade was effected in dairy produce lines yesterday.

Supplies of eggs were almost equally balanced with the demand, and consignments cleared steadily. New-laid commanded 1/10 to 2/, last week's prices; but case eggs possessed a slightly easier tendency. Northern rivers were worth 1/5, and South Coast and railways 1/6 a dozen.

Withdrawals of butter from the winter pool, shipments from Queensland, and consignments from New South Wales factories provided a supply sufficient to meet the demand. Steamers arrived from Byron Bay, the Clarence and Manning rivers, and the South Coast with 4687 boxes.

In answer to "J.F.T." it is stated that under the new prices "buttermen" may now charge 1/8 per lb for choicest quality butter, delivered in prints, and 1/8½ per lb if booked. The retail price of milk delivered in the suburbs is /6 per quart, /3 per pint, and /1½ per half-pint.

RAILWAY MARKET.

RISE IN POTATOES.

Weaker demand ruled for forage at Alexandria yesterday, and values consequently eased somewhat. Arrivals were large, consisting chiefly of good chaff with a light show of prime quality. Grain chaff formed the bulk of the yarding, while straw and hay were also well represented.

Vegetables were in heavy supply, and the demand proving brisk agents had no difficulty in disposing of their stocks at higher rates. Generally a rise of 10/ took place in potatoes, while prices for pumpkins manifested a firmer tendency.

The yarding comprised 185 trucks of forage, 19 of grain, and 15 of vegetables; while the manifest included 137 trucks of forage, 20 of grain, and 19 of vegetables.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP.

MARKET STEADY.

There were 17,000 sheep in the pens yesterday —a thousand less than shown on the draw slip. Taken as a whole it was an excellent penning of good quality sheep, both light and heavy weights. The merinos, of which there was a large proportion, included drafts carrying heavy woolly skins. This class of sheep was in strong demand at late heavy rates. The total supply came from 68 owners, representative of most centres of the State. The northern and western districts were largely in evidence on the consignment slips. There was a fair attendance of buyers, including, besides metropolitan, mountain, and coastal butchers, store stock buyers, who bought in for re-stocking purposes, wherever desirable. The market was generally unchanged, but with a firm tendency on store sheep, which were in good demand throughout. A line of 367 cross wethers from F. A. Bloomfield, of Caragabal, made to 44/7, and averaged 41/4. Another line of cross wethers from J. Hamilton, of Gurley, sold to 43/3. Merino wethers from J. E. and G. Chapman, of Cryon, realised to 41/7, and those from T. Graham, of Dubbo, made to 41/2.

CATTLE.

MARKET FIRM.

There was a general yarding of over 1500 head of cattle. It represented all classes, from calves to heavyweight bullocks and milch cows, and included yardings of useful trade sorts, as well as medium weights, and occasional yards of prime heavy bullocks, which, in some instances, yielded up to £25. The cattle came from 62 owners, and centres on the northern and north-western portions of the State contributed largely. The cattle were in good condition, and attracted the attention of a large gathering of buyers. All sections of the trade were represented. The market during early sales was firm at last day's average rates for all classes. The demand increased as sales progressed, and before the market closed values in many instances showed a decided rise. The improved tone continued, and as a result, the market as a whole became generally dearer. A line of 45 bullocks from the Walhallow Estate at Breeza sold to £24/5/, and averaged £20/11/1. The A. A. Company, of Willow Tree, forwarded 27 bullocks, which sold to £23/4/, and averaged £22/13/6; a line of 19 cows from Grant and Sherriff made to £19/10/, and averaged £16/14/.

SHIPPING REGULATIONS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

New shipping regulations under the War Regulations Act prohibit the removal of the registry of a New Zealand ship to a port of registry out of New Zealand or the removal of such ship from the register of British shipping. No New Zealand ship may be sold or mortgaged or chartered without the consent of the Minister of Marine, whose consent also is required before a ship can leave New Zealand for an oversea port or any proclaimed port. Further, without the consent of the Minister, no ship may be withdrawn from the New Zealand trade.

BELLINGEN TO THE CLARENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Railway Commissioners have announced that they propose to go on with the City Railway, and state that some of the factors in their decision are that already £1,000,000 has been spent on the railway, and to stop work entirely would mean that expensive gear would be idle, plant would deteriorate, and materials would be wasted. All these arguments were advanced by me when speaking at the recent deputation to the Minister asking him to go on with the eighth section of the North Coast line, which would connect it with the sections to the north and south of it, and give railway communication from the Bellingen River to the Clarence River, and give a connection to a terminal point at Coff's Harbour and at South Grafton. About £1,000,000 has been spent on these three sections; to finish the eighth section would only cost £147,000; and for an expenditure of £365,000 the North Coast line could be finished, and a great national work, the linking up of Sydney with Brisbane, completed. The spending of this money will produce wealth; the other will add nothing to the production of the country.

I am, etc.,
P. J. MACNAMARA,
Hon. Secretary Chamber of Commerce.
